Quake Survivors Dug Out

Belgian, Wife Pulled From Hotel Ruins

Couple Entombed
55 Hours Say They Planned Suicide

SKOPJE, Yugoslavia (AP) — In a miracle of survival, a Belgian and his wife were dug from the ruins of the Hotel Macedonia Sunday 55 hours after Skopje's killer earthquake entombed them. They said they had about abandoned hope and were ready to commit suicide.

"If we were not rescued in a few hours, Serge and I were going to cut our wrists and die together," said Suzie Jacquemart, 32, as she told from her hospital bed a story of horror and maddening thirst.

Her 35-year-old biologist husband, Serge, lay beside her, recovering from shock and bruises. Mrs. Jacquemart's injuries were minor.

300 Were In Hotel

Doctors and rescue workers said it was a miracle that anyone could have survived in the tomb of rock and mortar under the leveled four-story hotel. Officials estimated that about 300 guests were in the popular tourist hotel when the walls came crashing down early Friday.

Hopes rose for a time that others may have survived in the cellar where the Belgian couple landed and lived. Rescue workers believed they had heard other weak and bewildered voices while pulling the Jacquemarts out, but several hours of further digging passed without more survivors being found.

Mrs. Jacquemart was the first to be pulled out. Barely conscious, she gasped out that her husband and others were still alive lower down. Then she fainted.

Just then a hand poked out of a crack in the piles of shattered stone and voices in French cried out, "Water! Water!"

Oxygen Pumped In

Oxygen tanks were rushed to the opening near where the woman was found and air was pumped in under high pressure. Two hours later, Jacquemart was rescued. He was visibly tortured by his ordeal, but on the stretcher he managed a weak smile and a wave of the hand to his rescuers—a voiceless thank you for saving his life.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Jacquemart weakly described how he and his wife tried to quench their thirst by drinking their urine and sucking pieces of broken glass.

Jackemart said the quake struck moments after they awoke Friday morning.

"I was just rising from the bed and my wife was sitting opposite me on the edge of her bed," he said. "We planned to get on the road early."

"Suddenly, everything started shaking. I grabbed my wife and held her tightly in my arms. Ev-

Jackie Marks 34th Birthday

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Jacqueline Kennedy had a birthday Sunday, her 34th, and she celebrated it quietly with her family and close friends.

The President took her for a cruise on the White House yacht Honey Fitz. They sailed along Nantucket Sound, anchored for a time in a quiet cove for lunch and then went back home to the summer White House at Squaw Island.

The President and some of the guests aboard the boat took a swim in the cove, and later the President, his daughter Caroline and a guest took a dip off the breakwater in front of the Kennedy compound.

What Mrs. Kennedy got in the way of birthday presents from her husband and children or other Kennedy remained a secret.

So did any facts about other activities such as a birthday party. But the Kennedys are a close-knit family, and they usually make a lot of family gatherings for such anniversaries.

46 Hurt When Bridge On Golf Course Falls

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — "It could really have been a disaster," a sheriff's lieutenant said Sunday as he surveyed possibilities in the collapse of a golf course footbridge that injured 46 persons as the span fell into a river Saturday.

Eighty persons toppled 18 feet into the Clinton River Saturday at the Hillcrest Country Club as spectators and golfers at the Women's Wolverine Open Tournament crowded across the 200-foot long, wooden-plank suspension bridge.

Six of the injured, including golf pro Jo Anne Prentice of Birmingham, Ala., remained hospitalized Sunday. Some suffered broken bones, but none was listed in serious condition.

"Even as it was, we were lucky," Sheriff's Lt. Frank Coluzzi said. "If just one cable had snapped first, it would have dumped all of them and then the whole thing likely would have come down on them. Most everybody, though, was able to ride it down."

"There were just too many people on it. That's why it went down."

A mooring snapped and all four of the bridge's steel cables let loose at once. It swayed under its heavy load just before it dropped into four to six feet of water.

Because of the bridge collapse, Saturday's tournament round was cancelled. Two 18-hole rounds Sunday and Monday were scheduled to wind up the tourney. The 17th and 18th holes, normally reached by the footbridge, were eliminated.

Miss Prentice won't be able to play any more golf for a week or 10 days. She was shaken up and complained of abdominal pains and suffered cuts and bruises.

Dr. L. D. Rickman termed her condition good.

Other women golfers had narrow escapes.

Ruth Jessen and Marlene Hagge, playing in the same threesome with Miss Prentice, had just crossed over the span when Miss Jessen said she "heard screams and that awful crash."

Barred By White Church, Singing Negroes Seized

FARMVILLE, Va. (AP)—Police arrested 22 Negro demonstrators Sunday as they sat, singing loudly, on the steps of an all-white Baptist church to which they had failed to gain admittance.

Police Chief Otto Overton said the civil rights demonstrators were taken into custody on charges of interfering with the worship service of the First Baptist church.

Robert Burger, chairman of the board of deacons of the red brick church just off downtown Farmville, signed the arrest warrant. Among those arrested were a Negro Baptist minister and 16 juveniles.

The Negroes arrived about 11:30 a.m., a half hour after morning worship services had begun in the church, and found the doors locked. A member of the congre-

62 Killed In Jetliner Crash Near Bombay

United Arab Plane Falls Into Sea

BOMBAY, India (UPI)—A United Arab Airlines (UAA) Comet jetliner missing since Saturday crashed in the Arabian Sea off the coast of Bombay, killing all 62 persons aboard, authorities announced Sunday.

The plane carried 23 Filipino Boy Scouts and was piloted by Capt. Mohammed Wahmud El Shourou, the line's senior pilot.

An air and sea search was called off at 1:30 p.m. EDT, because of strong winds and rough seas after an Indian frigate at the crash site reported no trace of survivors.

The frigate Tir said it sighted dismembered bodies in waters nine miles west of Bombay's Santa Cruz International Airport along with three large pieces of torn metal believed to be from the Comet.

Naval authorities said the sonar-equipped frigates Tir and Zauvery would return to the crash site Monday if weather conditions permit.

It was not immediately known whether there were any Americans aboard the British-built four-engine Comet airliner which suddenly lost radar contact with the control tower after reporting it was at 7,000 feet and descending over the Arabian sea for the landing.

"Two Americans were aboard the plane when it left Tokyo but both were scheduled to disembark at Bangkok. They were identified only as M. Floy and Thomas Gnath. It was not known whether any Americans boarded the plane at other stops."

Two U. S. Soldiers Killed In Korea

SEOUL (AP) — Two U.S. soldiers were killed and a third was wounded early Monday in an attack south of the demilitarized zone, the U.N. Command announced.

The incident occurred about 5:30 a.m. near Chungyang-Dong. The three soldiers, members of the 1st Cavalry Division, were riding in a jeep to a guard post when they were mowed down by machine-gun fire and grenades, the U.N. Command said.

Col. George Creel, U.N. command spokesman, said the wounded cavalryman suffered four wounds in his chest, arms and legs. He was undergoing surgery at 11:30 a.m. when the announcement was made.

Creel said, "One unexploded Communist-type grenade was found near the scene together with approximately 100 expended rounds of Russian OMM-cartridge cases."

Creel described the incident as "a vicious and unprovoked sneak attack."

Tenements Collapse; At Least Eight Dead

CAIRO (AP) — Three crowded tenement buildings in an old section of Cairo collapsed Sunday, burying whole families. Rescue workers pulled eight bodies from the debris soon after and said they feared the final toll would be much higher.

Residents said as many as 150 persons lived in the three buildings, five-story structures of wood, stone and mud. Whole families lived in single rooms.

Adjoining buildings were evacuated quickly.

Arrest Of 77 Halts Danville Rights March

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — Police arrested 77 civil rights marchers Sunday as this city's racial strife bubbled into a light boil.

The marchers, ranging from small boys and girls to men and women in their 50s, covered five blocks before police stopped them at Main and Union streets in the downtown business district and told them they were under arrest.

All of the marchers, including five white persons, immediately sat on the sidewalk when halted by police. They sang "Black and White Together."

Heavy traffic, including many carloads of spectators, followed the route of the marchers. But police cleared all spectators and newsmen from the block where the arrests were made.

City police and state troopers picked up many of the demonstrators bodily and loaded them into a large trailer truck and four smaller trucks and rolled off to the city jail one block away.

Police Chief Eugene McCain said the marchers were charged with three violations—a Danville corporation court injunction against demonstrations, a city ordinance banning parades without permits and a city ordinance restricting picketing.

Negroes and some white persons have been demonstrating off and on in this city of 47,000 for about eight weeks.

Recently Resigned WE President Dies

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Mark W. Cresap Jr., who recently resigned as president and chief executive officer of Westinghouse Electric Corp. because of ill health, died early Sunday in Presbyterian University Hospital.

He had undergone surgery for gastric hemorrhaging July 17. Cresap, 53, resigned July 15. His successor is Donald C. Burnham, 48, formerly vice president in charge of Westinghouse's industrial group.

The company and several of its officers were heavily involved in the price fixing scandals in the electrical industry in 1961, but Cresap was never personally involved. He had been chief executive officer less than 90 days when a federal grand jury began its investigation in 1959.

Sen. Dirksen Cool To Test Ban Treaty

Possibility Of Link
To Nonaggression
Agreement Raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., raised the question Sunday of whether the signing of the nuclear test ban treaty may be followed by negotiations on an East-West non-aggression pact.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, called in a statement for "the closest scrutiny of every word" of the treaty before the Senate acts on its ratification. He said that even with approval of the agreement, "Life will go on as before."

But while Dirksen was reacting coolly, other Republicans were leaning toward ratification — although one cautioned that the Senate debate will be long and bitter with extreme right-wingers trying hard to defeat the treaty.

"If the treaty is ratified, it could dissolve some of the fear and strains but little more," Dirksen said. "Khrushchev has not yet recanted his determination to bury us."

"When Does Second Shoe Drop?"

"But to mix a metaphor, if this is a first step, when does the second shoe drop? Khrushchev already speaks of a nonaggression pact and other matters. The treaty therefore must be examined against the opaque curtain of the future."

Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, who negotiated the pending treaty, said Saturday the Soviet nonaggression pact idea was not a subject for negotiation during the nuclear discussions in Moscow, although it was mentioned.

He said the United States will discuss this question with its Western allies. West Germany and France, in particular, are strongly opposed to any non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact nations.

For one thing, they feel it would strengthen the position of Communist East Germany and solidify the division of Germany.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., predicted that all the living former presidents will line up in favor of the agreement. These are Republicans Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower and Democrat Harry S. Truman.

Scott "Mistrustful"

Scott said that "a lot of folks" are going to point out that the Russians have never kept an agreement they desired to break and he is "just as mistrustful."

But Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., appearing on a taped television program with Scott and Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said the Senate will not have to trust the Russians if it ratifies the treaty.

He said every atmospheric shot could be detected, although some small ones might defy identification as to their nature.

Dirksen complained that a provision of the treaty between the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain—which other nations have been invited to sign—would permit any participant to veto any amendment to it.

The treaty, which does not prohibit underground tests, permits any nation to withdraw from it on three-month notice.

Allies Of Soviet Rebuff Khrush Economic Plan

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev apparently has been rebuffed in an effort to weld his European Communist allies into a coordinated economic unit controlled from Moscow.

The Council for Mutual Economic assistance (Comecon), after a meeting of Communist party and government officials in Moscow during the last week, issued a communique Sunday that apparently pigeonholed Khrushchev's proposals for a Kremlin-based central planning organ.

Communist Romania's reported stiff resistance to the programs of Soviet planning experts was considered a factor in the Comecon rejection.

Romania opposed a plan to curtail its heavy industry development in favor of light industry and agricultural production for it and other of Moscow's allies.

Another obstacle to agreement on a common planning agency is believed to be the East Europeans' reluctance to sacrifice the limited economic independence from Moscow they now enjoy.

The Comecon conference, however, approved creation of a Soviet bloc international bank to facilitate multilateral payments in foreign trade transactions with the bloc, beginning Jan. 1.

These transactions now are conducted on an unwieldy bilateral basis between Communist trading partners because of the absence of a convertible currency that could be used for settling their outstanding accounts.

Observers here noted that the communique referred to Western economic integration in markedly milder tones.

The document did not mention the Western European Common Market which was vigorously assailed by a similar meeting of Comecon leaders in June 1962.

The propaganda line laid down last year accused the Common Market of hostile designs against the Soviet bloc and neutral nations, and labeled it a tool of NATO.

The latest Comecon statement again accused the United States and its NATO allies of pursuing discriminatory trade policies that hinders East-West commercial relations.

It also repeated the call for an international conference on trade and proposed the creation of an international trade organization.

New Tremors Spread Fear As Toll Rises

Number Of Known
Dead In Yugo City
Passes 700 Mark

SKOPJE, Yugoslavia (AP) — New tremors sent waves of fear across earthquake-wrecked Skopje Sunday and officials sped the evacuation of nearly all civilians from the city. Rescue workers found several Yugoslavs and foreign tourists alive in the debris and dug into the ruins with renewed energy.

The dramatic rescue of a Yugoslav and two foreign tourists from the ruins of the Hotel Macedonia came as the number of known dead from Friday's disastrous quake pushed past the 700 mark. Officials feared the hotel, a modern four-story rock building, may be the tomb for nearly 300 others.

Officials said hundreds or perhaps even thousands more victims still are buried in the rubble of homes, Moslem mosques and minarets, apartment houses, and modern buildings in this city of 270,000.

The United States joined many other nations in speeding aid to Skopje, designed by President Tito as a model city to attract foreign tourists.

U. S. Mercy Airlift Completed

Twenty-seven U.S. cargo planes completed an all-night mercy airlift into Belgrade from West Germany, bringing with them a self-sufficient Army field hospital with 120 beds, 30 vehicles and 209 men.

The Americans were cheered by crowds lining streets in the Communist capital as they rolled in a convoy down the road to Skopje, 220 miles south southeast of Belgrade. It was the first U.S. unit to visit Yugoslavia since a small military advisory group left in 1956.

The mobile hospital will be set up on the edge of Skopje.

More than 100 tremors rippled across the city for the third straight day, causing fear but no new damage.

More than 50,000 persons were evacuated from Skopje into other Yugoslav cities. The government planned to evacuate all survivors except men able to help in rescue work.

Sunday began with the electrifying news that two Yugoslavs had been rescued from beneath mountains of debris more than 36 hours after the killer earthquake struck at dawn Thursday.

Belgian Couple Rescued

As word spread of the rescue, bone-tired workers dug into the rubble with a new burst of hope.

Nineteen hours later, a Belgian couple, Jean and Suzie Jacquemart, were dramatically rescued from the ruins of the Hotel Macedonia after rescuers heard voices coming from the ground.

The quake had plunged them from their ground floor bedroom into the basement.

Barely conscious, they were rushed to a hospital after mumbling to rescuers that they had heard voices sounding faintly around them during their long ordeal.

Rescuers heard the voices of others behind a basement wall, bored a hole through the concrete and handed water to those inside.

As rescuers pumped oxygen into the hole, men and earth moving machines converged around the hotel. There were nearly 300 tourists, including foreigners visiting Europe at the height of the tourist season, in the building when the earthquake struck.

Eight Americans, the only persons from the United States known to have been in the city when the quake struck, escaped unhurt.

"When Does Second Shoe Drop?"

"But to mix a metaphor, if this is a first step, when does the second shoe drop? Khrushchev already speaks of a nonaggression pact and other matters. The treaty therefore must be examined against the opaque curtain of the future."

Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, who negotiated the pending treaty, said Saturday the Soviet nonaggression pact idea was not a subject for negotiation during the nuclear discussions in Moscow, although it was mentioned.

He said the United States will discuss this question with its Western allies. West Germany and France, in particular, are strongly opposed to any non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact nations.

For one thing, they feel it would strengthen the position of Communist East Germany and solidify the division of Germany.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., predicted that all the living former presidents will line up in favor of the agreement. These are Republicans Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower and Democrat Harry S. Truman.

Scott "Mistrustful"

Scott said that "a lot of folks" are going to point out that the Russians have never kept an agreement they desired to break and he is "just as mistrustful."

But Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., appearing on a taped television program with Scott and Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said the Senate will not have to trust the Russians if it ratifies the treaty.

He said every atmospheric shot could be detected, although some small ones might defy identification as to their nature.

Dirksen complained that a provision of the treaty between the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain—which other nations have been invited to sign—would permit any participant to veto any amendment to it.

The treaty, which does not prohibit underground tests, permits any nation to withdraw from it on three-month notice.

France, Japan, Red China Expected To Shun A-Pact

LONDON (UPI) — Most nations, with several notable exceptions, Sunday were expected to respond favorably to invitations from the Big 3 nuclear powers to sign the recently concluded partial test ban treaty.

Responsible sources in Paris said Sunday French President Charles de Gaulle will turn down an unqualified "no" the offer of the United States and Britain to join in the two countries' accord with the Soviet Union.

De Gaulle will hold a news conference Monday and sources said he may use the occasion to seek improved relations with the United States, perhaps even suggesting a meeting with President Kennedy early in 1964.

Lynn put her hand through the bars of the bear's cage and the bear attacked. The girl's mother, Mrs. Ivy Seely, tried to pull her daughter free but the bear held on until a bystander beat it with a piece of pipe. Doctors say Lynn may lose her hand.

Allies Of Soviet Rebuff Khrush Economic Plan

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev apparently has been rebuffed in an effort to weld his European Communist allies into a coordinated economic unit controlled from Moscow.

The Council for Mutual Economic assistance (Comecon), after a meeting of Communist party and government officials in Moscow during the last week, issued a communique Sunday that apparently pigeonholed Khrushchev's proposals for a Kremlin-based central planning organ.

Communist Romania's reported stiff resistance to the programs of Soviet planning experts was considered a factor in the Comecon rejection.

Romania opposed a plan to curtail its heavy industry development in favor of light industry and agricultural production for it and other of Moscow's allies.

Another obstacle to agreement on a common planning agency is believed to be the East Europeans' reluctance to sacrifice the limited economic independence from Moscow they now enjoy.

The Comecon conference, however, approved creation of a Soviet bloc international bank to facilitate multilateral payments in foreign trade transactions with the bloc, beginning Jan. 1.

These transactions now are conducted on an unwieldy bilateral basis between Communist trading partners because of the absence of a convertible currency that could be used for settling their outstanding accounts.

Observers here noted that the communique referred to Western economic integration in markedly milder tones.

The document did not mention the Western European Common Market which was vigorously assailed by a similar meeting of Comecon leaders in June 1962.

The propaganda line laid down last year accused the Common Market of hostile designs against the Soviet bloc and neutral nations, and labeled it a tool of NATO.

The latest Comecon statement again accused the United States and its NATO allies of pursuing discriminatory trade policies that hinders East-West commercial relations.

It also repeated the call for an international conference on trade, and proposed the creation of an international trade organization.

New Tremors Spread Fear As Toll Rises

Number Of Known
Dead In Yugo City
Passes 700 Mark

SKOPJE, Yugoslavia (AP) — New tremors sent waves of fear across earthquake-wrecked Skopje Sunday and officials sped the evacuation of nearly all civilians from the city. Rescue workers found several Yugoslavs and foreign tourists alive in the debris and dug into the ruins with renewed energy.

The dramatic rescue of a Yugoslav and two foreign tourists from the ruins of the Hotel Macedonia came as the number of known dead from Friday's disastrous quake pushed past the 700 mark. Officials feared the hotel, a modern four-story rock building, may be the tomb for nearly 300 others.

Officials said hundreds or perhaps even thousands more victims still are buried in the rubble of homes, Moslem mosques and minarets, apartment houses, and modern buildings in this city of 270,000.

The United States joined many other nations in speeding aid to Skopje, designed by President Tito as a model city to attract foreign tourists.

U. S. Mercy Airlift Completed

Twenty-seven U.S. cargo planes completed an all-night mercy airlift into Belgrade from West Germany, bringing with them a self-sufficient Army field hospital with 120 beds, 30 vehicles and 209 men. The Americans were cheered by crowds lining streets in the Communist capital as they rolled in a convoy down the road to Skopje, 220 miles south southeast of Belgrade. It was the first U.S. unit to visit Yugoslavia since a small military advisory group left in 1956.

The mobile hospital will be set up on the edge of Skopje. More than 100 tremors rippled across the city for the third straight day, causing fear but no new damage.

More than 50,000 persons were evacuated from Skopje into other Yugoslav cities. The government planned to evacuate all survivors except men able to help in rescue work.

Sunday began with the electrifying news that two Yugoslavs had been rescued from beneath mountains of debris more than 36 hours after the killer earthquake struck at dawn Thursday.

Belgian Couple Rescued

As word spread of the rescue, bone-tired workers dug into the rubble with a new burst of hope.

Nineteen hours later, a Belgian couple, Jean and Suzie Jacquemart, were dramatically rescued from the ruins of the Hotel Macedonia after rescuers heard voices coming from the ground.

The quake had plunged them from their ground floor bedroom into the basement.

Barely conscious, they were rushed to a hospital after mumbling to rescuers that they had heard voices sounding faintly around them during their long ordeal.

Rescuers heard the voices of others behind a basement wall, bored a hole through the concrete and handed water to those inside. As rescuers pumped oxygen into the hole, men and earth moving machines converged around the hotel. There were nearly 300 tourists, including foreigners visiting Europe at the height of the tourist season, in the building when the earthquake struck.

Eight Americans, the only persons from the United States known to have been in the city when the quake struck, escaped unhurt.

Secret Space Capsules Recovered By AF Unit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Secret payloads of satellites launched from the West Coast are being recovered routinely from polar orbits by a highly specialized Air Force unit, it was disclosed officially Sunday.

After more than a year of silence imposed by the Defense Department, the Air Force was permitted to release sketchy details on the secret launches in connection with the award of a citation to a capsule recovery team.

The "Outstanding Unit Award" was given the 6593rd Test Squadron at Hickam Air Force Base, Honolulu, in recognition of "its record in the development and application of aerial techniques for the recovery of space capsules returned from orbiting satellites."

With great fanfare, the United States recovered the first man-made object from space—the Air Force's Discoverer 13 satellite capsule—on Aug. 11, 1960. The capsule, ejected from the satellite in orbit, returned through the atmosphere on a parachute and was fished out of the Pacific by Navy divers.

A C119 airplane of the Hickam-based squadron made the first aerial recovery of a space capsule on Aug. 19, 1960, snatching it and its parachute out of the air over the Pacific.

The Discoverer satellite series was a development program aimed at perfecting reconnaissance and warning satellites for worldwide observations and protection against ballistic missiles.

Early last year, the Kennedy administration placed the Discoverer and other military satellites behind a secrecy curtain. Ever since, there have been announcements on launchings from Vandenberg Air Force Base and adjacent Point Arguello, Calif., but nothing has been told of what was launched.

In Sunday's statement, the Air Force was permitted to reveal that more than 70 per cent of the satellites launched last year with recovery as a goal actually were retrieved by the 6593rd Squadron. In a more recent series, 88 per cent were recovered.

No hint was given of what was in the capsule payloads.

Baton Rouge Catholic School Integration Set

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) —Congregations in the Roman Catholic diocese of Baton Rouge were told Sunday that desegregation of parochial schools in the area begins in 1964.

Priests read a pastoral letter from every pulpit outlining the move. Bishop Robert Tracy also announced the plan in a news conference.

Bishop Tracy said the 11th and 12th grades in the four parochial high schools in East Baton Rouge Parish (county) will be opened to Negro students in September, 1964.

Public schools in the parish, moving under orders from a federal judge, begin desegregation in the 12th grade on a reverse step ladder plan this fall.

The bishop said the court's action last week, after eight years of legal fighting, came too late for the diocese to have parochial schools conform to the same plan.

"However, we would like to bring our schools up to date with public schools in September, 1964," he said. By that date, public schools must also open their 11th grades to Negro students.

There was one significant difference in the church and public plans. The church said the only standard of admission would be educational status. The public plan included numerous qualifying hurdles.

Sandwich Shop Owners Robbed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The owners of a chain of Washington sandwich shops were robbed of $3,000 Sunday morning by an armed holdup man who escaped with one or two accomplices in a waiting car.

Ellis Ledy, 53, and his brother Sidney, 57, the owners of the Miles Long Sandwich Shop were returning in a car to their office after gathering the previous day's receipts from their seven shops.

Sidney let Ellis out at the entrance of the building while he parked the car. Before he could go inside Ellis was approached by a man wearing a stocking mask.

Ellis reported that when he turned around a man hit him with a revolver and took his case which contained about $700.

The bandit took from Sidney a similar case containing about $1300, then drove off in a car that was waiting for him.

Witnesses disagreed as to whether there were two men or three in the car as it drove away.

Washington Woman Is Attacked By Negro

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 37-year-old woman was raped Sunday after a man grabbed her from behind, demanded money and then pushed and rolled her down an embankment in Rock Creek Park police reported.

The victim told police she was walking near the edge of the park when she was seized by the man.

The victim described her attacker as a 20 to 25 year old Negro about 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds.

Maryland Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP) — Infants should be given special care in lingering 90-degree weather to avoid heat prostration, says a Maryland Health Department official.

Dr. Edward Hopkins, consultant pediatrician with the department's Bureau of Preventive Medicine said an infant's water reserve is extremely limited in comparison with an adult's making the child subject to excessive loss of fluids.

Hopkins said parents could protect infants from dehydration by keeping them in cool places, giving them lukewarm sponge baths, keeping them in the path of gently moving air, dressing them in minimum clothing and making frequent checks of their temperature.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Douglas A. MacFarlane has been reappointed by the Maryland Multiple Sclerosis Society to head its 1963 Hope Chest Campaign.

The reappointment was the result of MacFarlane's efforts as campaign chairman last year, said Thomas D. R. Parr, chairman of the society. MacFarlane is vice chairman of the Maryland chapter and has been on its board of directors for two years.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Funeral services will be held Monday for Mrs. Frederick Bauernschmidt, widow of the former Baltimore businessman and philanthropist who donated more than $1 million to build a wing on Union Memorial Hospital here.

Mrs. Bauernschmidt, 90, died at the hospital Saturday after a short illness. Funeral services will be held at her home with burial in Druid Ridge Cemetery.

JFK Rights Program Sound, Health Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., said Sunday President Kennedy's civil rights program "is sound because it seeks to improve the employment and earnings of Negro Americans."

"No matter how wisely we legislate," Long said in a television speech, "The Negro cannot obtain satisfactory economic and social acceptance unless he is regularly employed and earns an adequate income."

Long said that Negro Americans should be shown the same generosity America has demonstrated by "opening our door to refugees from tyranny."

Barclay Post Office Destroyed By Fire

BARCLAY, Md. (AP) — Fire broke out after a lightning storm here Sunday and destroyed the town's post office and barber shop which were housed in the same frame building.

Mrs. Elsie O'Farrell, postmistress, said that she and other citizens were able to save most of the post office's records and all of Monday's mail, except one package.

Damage was estimated at $10,000.

New Episode In Christine's Escapades Due

LONDON (AP) — Christine Keeler—the femme fatale whose wide ranging love life brought Dr. Stephen Ward to trial—is expected to grab the limelight again this week in Britain's long-running sex and security saga.

While Ward's arraignment on five counts of procuring continues at the Old Bailey courthouse, the Appeal Court will on Tuesday examine the case of Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon. He is the Jamaican jazz singer appealing against conviction and a three-year jail term on charges of beating up Miss Keeler, his former lover.

The Appeal Court will be told the contents of a tape recording made by Christine under the influence of drink and drugs soon after the June 6 conviction of Gordon.

It is said to be a 10-hour account of her tangled love affairs. These at one time involved both disgraced War Minister John D. Profumo, who later resigned, and Soviet diplomat Yevgeny Ivanov—a triangular arrangement that is still being probed by security investigators.

Gordon's attorneys have said the tape contains important matters with a vital bearing on his case.

While Gordon met his legal advisers at Wandsworth Prison, Ward—the 50-year-old society osteopath on the other end of the social scale—spent the weekend in seclusion. He is free on bail from the Old Bailey hearing and one report had him holed up in a friend's apartment in arty Chelsea.

Ward's troubles were brought to a head by the disclosure of the affair between Miss Keeler and Profumo. His arrest came three days after Profumo's resignation. He is liable to a total of 25 years in jail if proved guilty on all five counts against him.

Ward through the first week of his trial doggedly denied profiting from a stable of promiscuous girls operated for the benefit of rich and aging clients—most of them socially prominent.

Three Persons Killed In Crash

POINT MARION, Pa. (AP) — Two teen-agers and a man were killed early Sunday in a collision involving two cars and a truck on route 119 near this southwestern Pennsylvania town.

Killed were Ralph E. Gibson, 17, of Logantown R. D. 4, W.Va.; his brother, Robert L. Gibson, 23, of Logantown, R. D. 4; and a cousin, Allen Dale Gibson, 15, of Morgantown, R. D. 4, W.Va.

State Police said a car driven by Ralph Gibson struck an auto driven by David Norman Hess, 37, of Morgantown, R. D. 4, in the left rear and then crossed the highway and collided head on with a truck driven by Elmer Anderson, 49, of Greensburg, Pa.

Anderson was treated at Uniontown Hospital and released. Police said Hess' daughter, Glenna, 13, suffered minor injuries but received no immediate treatment. Hess was not hurt.

Catholics To Join D. C. Rights March

CHICAGO (AP) — A Roman Catholic group decided Sunday to take the leadership in organizing delegates from Catholic interfaith councils in 28 states.

Ahmann said the board also "called special attention to our taking the leadership in organizing Catholic delegations to take part in the march in Washington Aug. 28."

The directors also accepted as formal policy this declaration: "The debate on civil rights legislation now before Congress presents a moral issue. The urgency of the need to ensure the essential human rights provided in this (Kennedy administration) bill must override normal human reluctance to accept change in established habits.

"Support of this bill should be universal at all levels of Catholic life. Catholics who fail to take a positive stand on this issue are failing to meet their obligations as responsible citizens."

The directors approved plans for action that were endorsed Saturday at a one-day meeting of delegates from Catholic interfaith councils in 28 states.

Peking Says U. S.-India Air Pact Peace Menace

TOKYO (AP) — Amid reports declared that anyone who says China Red China is again massing troops on India's borders, Peking last fall's Himalayan battlefields is guilty of an "out-and-out lie."

U.S.-Indian air defense agreement "Everybody knows that there is absolutely no question of China invading India, still less any question of China carrying out aerial attacks on India," said Radio-Peking, quoting an editorial in the official People's Daily.

The United States and India announced July 22 that India will get U.S. technical assistance and equipment and that the agreement provides for joint air defense exercises.

"This is a grave step taken by the Indian government in its desire to liberate attempt to create new tensions along the Sino-Indian border and to threaten the peace of Asia," the broadcast said.

Despite India's charges that Red China is building up its forces on the border. Peking declared that anyone who says China intends to resume the fighting on last fall's Himalayan battlefields is guilty of an "out-and-out lie."

Noting increasing collaboration of Red China and Pakistan, Nehru said the two nations have nothing in common except hatred of India. He said the rapprochement of Red China and Pakistan has increased India's danger from external aggression."

The broadcast said Prime Minister Nehru's government is trying to keep tension high for domestic political reasons.

Only Saturday Nehru told an audience at Hyderabad that the border situation is "full of menace."

JFK Rights Program Sound, Long Declares

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., said Sunday President Kennedy's civil rights program "is sound because it seeks to improve the employment and earnings of Negro Americans."

"No matter how wisely we legislate," Long said in a television speech, "The Negro cannot obtain satisfactory economic and social acceptance unless he is regularly employed and earns an adequate income."

Long said that Negro Americans should be shown the same generosity America has demonstrated by "opening our door to refugees from tyranny."

Barclay Post Office Destroyed By Fire

BARCLAY, Md. (AP)—Fire broke out after a lightning storm here Sunday and destroyed the town's post office and barber shop which were housed in the same frame building.

Mrs. Elsie O'Farrell, postmistress, said that she and other citizens were able to save most of the post office's records and all of Monday's mail, except one package.

Damage was estimated at $10,000.

New Episode In Christine's Escapades Due

LONDON (AP)—Christine Keeler—the femme fatale whose wide ranging love life brought Dr. Stephen Ward to trial—is expected to grab the limelight again this week in Britain's long-running sex and security saga.

While Ward's arraignment on five counts of procuring continues at the Old Bailey courthouse, the Appeal Court will on Tuesday examine the case of Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon. He is the Jamaican jazz singer appealing against conviction and a three-year jail term on charges of beating Miss Keeler, his former lover.

The Appeal Court will be told the contents of a tape recording made by Christine under the influence of drink and drugs soon after the June 6 conviction of Gordon.

It is said to be a 10-hour account of her tangled love affairs. These at one time involved both disgraced War Minister John D. Profumo, who later resigned, and Soviet diplomat Yevgeny Ivanov—a triangular arrangement that is still being probed by security investigators.

Gordon's attorneys have said the tape contains important matters with a vital bearing on his case.

While Gordon met his legal advisers at Wandsworth Prison, Ward—the 50-year-old society osteopath on the other end of the social scale—spent the weekend in seclusion. He is free on bail from the Old Bailey hearing and one report had him holed up in a friend's apartment in arty Chelsea.

Ward's troubles were brought to a head by the disclosure of the affair between Miss Keeler and Profumo. His arrest came three days after Profumo's resignation. He is liable to a total of 25 years in jail if proved guilty on all five counts against him.

Ward through the first week of his trial doggedly denied profiting from a stable of promiscuous girls operated for the benefit of rich and aging clients—most of them socially prominent.

Three Persons Killed In Crash

POINT MARION, Pa. (AP)—Two teen-agers and a man were killed early Sunday in a collision involving two cars and a truck on route 119 near this southwestern Pennsylvania town.

Killed were Ralph E. Gibson, 17, of Logantown R. D. 4, W.Va.; his brother, Robert L. Gibson, 23, of Logantown, R. D. 4; and a cousin, Allen Dale Gibson, 15, of Morgantown, R. D. 4, W.Va.

State Police said a car driven by Ralph Gibson struck an auto driven by David Norman Hess, 37, of Morgantown, R. D. 4, in the left rear and then crossed the highway and collided head on with a truck driven by Elmer Anderson, 49, of Greensburg, Pa.

Anderson was treated at Uniontown Hospital and released. Police said Hess' daughter, Glenna, 13, suffered minor injuries but received no immediate treatment. Hess was not hurt.

Catholics To Join D. C. Rights March

CHICAGO (AP)—A Roman Catholic group decided Sunday to take the leadership in organizing delegates from Catholic inter-racial councils in 28 states.

Ahmann said the board also "called special attention to our taking the leadership in organizing Catholic delegations to take part in the march in Washington Aug. 28."

The directors also accepted as formal policy this declaration: "The debate on civil rights legislation now before Congress presents a moral issue. The urgency of the need to ensure the essential human rights provided in this Catholic participation."

The directors approved plans everything collapsed around us. We fell two stories. Fortunately, two wooden beams and the ceiling fell above us, forming a small dome which protected us. My legs were pinned under bricks and I was unable to move. My wife, however, was unhurt and could crawl and move about our prison.

Peking Says U. S.-India Air Pact Peace Menace

TOKYO (AP)—Amid reports declared that anyone who says China Red China is again massing intends to resume the fighting on troops on India's borders, Peking last fall's Himalayan battlefields is guilty of an "out-and-out lie."

U.S.-Indian air defense agreement "Everybody knows that there is absolutely no question of China invading India, still less any question of China carrying out aerial attacks on India," said Radio Peking, quoting an editorial in the official People's Daily.

The broadcast said Prime Minister Nehru's government is trying to keep tension high for domestic political reasons. Only Saturday Nehru told an audience at Hyderabad that the border situation is "full of menace."

"This is a grave step taken by the Indian government in its deliberate attempt to create new tensions along the Sino-Indian border and to threaten the peace in Asia," the broadcast said.

Despite India's charges that Red China is building up its increased India's danger from external aggression."

Military Police Often Act Illegally

Military policemen or other military personnel have absolutely no right or authority to exercise police powers over civilians at the site of an accident involving military equipment. This is clear and Defense Department officials have admitted it.

Despite this, in a growing number of instances, the three military services are pushing newsmen around, pulling guns on them and threatening them to keep them from covering news of such events as airplane crashes. Recent incidents of this kind have occurred in North Carolina, New Mexico, Indiana and Kansas.

Rep. John Moss, chairman of the Information subcommittee of the House of Representatives, has determined that the incidents have been caused by orders issued by the Army and Air Force to "physically restrain" civilians who try to take pictures of accidents, even if the accidents are on civilian property.

These orders are patently illegal. Furthermore, as Moss points out, they strike at the heart of civilian supremacy over the military forces. "This military attempt to exercise a police power over civilians flies in the face of the basic concepts of our government," Moss says.

Newsmen will not knowingly violate the strictures of military security and will cooperate with military officials. But they expect to be treated with respect and understanding of the jobs they have to do.

When soldiers begin pushing civilians around without any authority in law—and with tacit approval of high officers in the Pentagon—then the nation is treading on dangerous ground.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

The Coming Nuclear Slavery

Not so long ago my "cousin" (actually no relative), Professor Neil W. Chamberlain, of the Yale economics faculty, sent me his paperback bearing the title of "The West in a World Without War," published by McGraw-Hill. I tossed it to one side as something that might conceivably be of interest to my grandchildren, but certainly of no particular value to the present nuclear-beset generation. But there it sat at the back of the table, and as the news from Moscow kept stressing Khrushchev's "jollity" the title kept poking itself into my consciousness.

Finally, yielding to curiosity under the prod of the nuclear test ban talk, I stuck my nose into the professor's pages. I got the shock of my life. For the world of western "peace," which Neil Chamberlain thinks is coming, is projected as the modern equivalent of what prevailed in that ancient England in which the first Germanic comers to a Celtic island paid the "Danegeld," as tribute and blackmail, to another hardy race from across the North Sea. And Kipling's words came back to me: "Once you have paid him the Danegeld, You'll never get rid of the Dane."

Professor Neil Chamberlain, to be strictly truthful, never once mentions such a thing as the Danegeld. The horrible word blackmail does not sully his pages. But give ear to his argument, you poor citizens of the West who might be under the delusion that a world without war will be a pleasant world, and figure it out for yourself.

The professor, looking at the stockpiles of nuclear bombs which are currently at the disposal of America and the Soviet Union, thinks it only a question of time before other nations will have succeeded in joining the nuclear club. With the dangerous stuff proliferating, he envisions all the atomic countries rushing to pool their weapons with the United Nations as a supreme keeper of the peace. War will be renounced.

But don't begin singing hallelujah at the prospect. For, by the sheer weight of their populations, the "proletarian" nations of the world will dominate the U.N. peace club. World policy will be an Afro-Asian affair. The western countries with the money and the industrial know-how might, like the American cotton states of the Eighteen Forties and the Eighteen Fifties, continue to be sovereign within their own borders.

But the power to "interpose," to veto any raids on their treasuries, must break down. The gang in control of the monopolized nuclear weapons will inevitably have the last say. Any attempt to secede from the nuclear-dominated union would be ten times as futile as the effort of the old Confederacy of Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis, for how could conventional weapons hold out against the massing of atomic rockets in the possession of the U.N. "peace keeping" army?

Neil Chamberlain tries to perfume the prospect a bit. He envisions the rich members of the U.N. willingly subjecting themselves to a "graduated international income tax." The West, so he says, will continue to keep the same sort of advantage that a rich citizen of the United States or Britain now has over the poorer citizens. But, like rich citizens, the western countries will not have much to say about the conduct of their own lives. They will be told where to invest their funds. They will have to run their businesses with all sorts of fringe benefits and special levies going to people who don't even work for the company.

It might not be so bad if this were the limit of the price to be paid for putting one's nuclear arms under the control of a central authority dominated by the millions of Asia and Africa. (Naturally, Professor Chamberlain expects Red China to be in on the deal.) But why should the "proletarian" nations stop there? Why should the ones with the power let the ones with the wealth keep even the slightest sort of advantage? Has naked power ever been kind?

I'm asking Professor Neil Chamberlain. And I'm running like the very devil from the whole idea of a world government dominated by the likes of China's Mao Tse-tung, who would surely use his 700 million cowed and bemused constituents to vote me into permanent servitude.

Peace? With the "Danegeld" being upped year by year? I prefer the "balance of terror," with its boon of admittedly precarious freedom, any day.

'What Makes You Think I'm Over-Anxious?'

Nuclear Test Ban Treaty Termed Big Delusion

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The biggest delusion of modern times is contained in the "nuclear-test ban" treaty just "initiated" at Moscow by representatives of the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union.

Formal signing is to come later, and ratification by the U. S. Senate is necessary before the document can be regarded as in effect for this country.

The agreement, however, does not do what most people probably think it does—reduce the danger of a nuclear war. Indeed, the impression is mistakenly given that it means the abolition of nuclear war. This is due to the emphasis that has been placed on the meeting at Moscow and because of the protracted crusade for the test ban which has been carried on in recent years, largely by pacifist groups in various countries.

But the new treaty would not bar the use of any nuclear weapons in war.

It would not bring about a reduction in the existing number of nuclear weapons possessed by any government or limit in any way future production.

It would not bar nations other than the signers from carrying on whatever tests they pleased.

It would not prevent nuclear tests underground.

It would not guarantee against attempts to cheat by conducting tests above the ground. Russia cheated last time and deliberately violated her agreement.

The military advantage to the Soviet Union lies in the fact that the United States is ahead in the kind of weapons that require underground testing, and now the Soviets have gained a free hand to improve their position and catch up with the United States in this field. Also, the Soviet Union is believed to have gone ahead in certain categories, such as anti-missile-missiles and "terror" weapons, which require atmospheric testing, and the United States cannot now conduct such tests to catch up with the Soviets. It is argued here in rebuttal, however, that bombs requiring above-ground or underwater testing have been accumulated in sufficient quantity to make such testing less important.

Then why all the hullabaloo about a nuclear-test-ban treaty or "partial ban," as it is more often termed? The answer is to be found in the political domain. The same proposals were made in previous years by the United States but were rejected by the Soviets. Today, however, for undisclosed reasons, Premier Khrushchev is trying another tack. He suddenly indicated a few weeks ago he was ready for a high-level conference at Moscow on the subject of nuclear testing. Nobody knows why he shifted tactics, but it is assumed that he needed to make some showing of peaceful intent as to quiet his internal opposition and deflate Red China's war scare.

It is conceivable, too, that the military experts of the Soviet Union figured that, if the United States were to discontinue above-ground and underwater testing, this would in some manner halt the nuclear development of the United States in certain categories of weapons and prevent any real superiority from being achieved.

As for underground testing, it will continue to be carried on by both sides. Also, it is contended that if the moratorium on above-ground and underwater testing is some day broken by the Soviet Union, the United States can automatically resume testing anywhere. The experts among the scientists say, however, that it isn't as simple as it sounds and that continuous testing is im-

GOOBERS—AND RELIEF — Here's the kind of difficulty the government can get into as it tries to cope with surplus agricultural products.

Peanuts are in surplus supply. One way to work off the surplus is to encourage the use of peanut butter. One way to encourage the use of peanut butter is to put it on the list of products for free distribution to persons on the relief rolls.

The Agriculture Department took this step with peanut butter and promptly ran into some vigorous protests from peanut butter manufacturers. They claimed that people on relief rolls had so much peanut butter available that they'd never eat the stuff again, once they got off relief, and that this was the long-range prospect for their commercial market.

This protest got so serious that the department made a study of the situation. It chose Baltimore, where peanut butter has been on the free distribution list. The department found the average per capita consumption of peanut butter there rose from .22 to .85 pounds per month after the spread was put on the free list.

In effect, the Agriculture Department said to the peanut butter manufacturers: "Nuts to you!"

WASHINGTON—Aftermaths of the Governors' Conference—Gov. Nelson Rockefeller was with the new Mrs. Rockefeller everywhere in Miami—the first couple on the dance floor, the most highlighted couple at receptions. They even refused to be separated when Gov. Rosellini, D-Wash., the conference chairman, asked Rocky to go to the airport to meet Vice President Johnson. Rocky wanted to know whether wives were invited, was told "no," then declined to serve. Happy Rockefeller met all the ladies, was gracious, charming. However, it didn't thaw the opposition. Behind her back, GOP governors' wives made vicious remarks about the divorce and the children. Conclusion of the political pundits was that the remarriage is a greater stumbling block between Rocky and the White House than previously realized.

Aside from matrimony, Rockefeller scored a great victory, was easily the most outstanding figure in Miami. The TV cameras followed him everywhere—in contrast to Michigan's George Romney who was generally neglected. In backstage GOP huddles, Rocky argued that the Republicans, as the minority party, had to stick together on civil rights. He got strong support from Ray Bliss, the Ohio GOP big wheel who mobilized Dusty Rhodes, the new Governor of Ohio. Mark Hatfield, likeable Governor of Oregon, did a lot of front-running on the same unity principle. (Democrats wished he was on their side). . . . In party caucuses, Bliss argued against the Goldwater theory of Gov. Paul Fannin of Arizona and Oklahoma's Henry Bellmon that the Republicans could win if they carried all states west of the Mississippi plus the south. This, said Bliss, was the best way to commit political suicide. . . . Fannin would reluctantly come around to this, then leave the caucus and change his mind. The boys would then have to bring him back to another caucus and get him to change his mind back again.

Absent Scranton—Every governor in the USA was at Miami, including the governors of Guam and Samoa—except for the Governor of Pennsylvania. Bill Scranton was conspicuously absent and it didn't do him any good. . . . It was reported that Rockefeller had sent an emissary to see him in advance on civil rights, that Scranton got committed, then realized he might be overly committed, so took a run-out. . . . Governor who came up with the least glamor was supposedly glamorous George Romney, who showed off a trim waistline around the swimming pool, but tried to carry water on both shoulders regarding Goldwater. Romney was the only governor in the memory of newsmen who had to issue a press release to explain what he had meant in a press conference. . . . Conclusion of most observers regarding the three gubernatorial days in the Florida sun: Rocky enhanced his prestige considerably, but not enough to overcome his divorce. However, he has really dimmed the luster of Barry Goldwater.

Key Election

Most significant bi-election of the year takes place in Pennsylvania tomorrow to fill the shoes of the late chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, Francis Walter, long-time elder statesman from Pennsylvania.

It happens that Bethlehem Steel officials are putting up a terrific battle to elect one of their men, Robert Bartlett, Republican, to replace Walter in a district which hasn't elected a Republican in this century. If they win it will be a real blow to Kennedy forces.

Behind Bartlett, a 31-year-old West Pointer, are V. J. Pazzetti Jr., former general manager of Bethlehem, who is serving as GOP campaign manager; also Russell Branscom, a Bethlehem vice president, and George Fugere, and Emile Peryman, two Bethlehem union executives.

It's also reported that Bethlehem officials have kicked in sizeable campaign contributions, following the precedent in the last election for mayor when 46 Bethlehem steel officials were listed as contributing $3,205 to defeat Democrat Paul Jani.

At that time Henry Ragot, Republican County Chairman, was quoted by the alert Bethlehem Globe-Times as saying that if the steel officials had consulted him he would have funneled their contributions directly to state GOP headquarters so the names would not have to be published. In the current campaign for congressman it will be interesting to see whether they are following his advice.

Sam Houston died a hundred years ago this week. He was 70. He was 6 feet 2 inches tall, had big hands and molasses-colored skin, and gray eyes. He had faults—liquor, women and compromise—and yet he must rank among the 10 greatest men in United States history. He was a representative in Congress, a general, a Senator, governor of two states, and president of the Republic of Texas.

He achieved it all on less than an elementary school education. Houston was born near Lexington, Virginia, on March 2, 1793. His father, Major Samuel Houston, was a veteran of the revolution. His mother, Elizabeth Paxton Houston, became a widow in 1807 and took her six sons and three daughters to Maryville, Tennessee.

Young Sam was 16 when he left home to join the Cherokees on the far side of the river. In three years, he learned to speak Cherokee and absorbed their customs and credos. He left them to volunteer to fight for his country in the War of 1812. When that war was over, Houston fought under Andrew Jackson against the Creek Indians.

The young man bore himself well at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend, Alabama. He came to the attention of Jackson and, from that time on, Old Hickory and the Oak grew beside each other. They disagreed, they argued, but the man-to-man respect never diminished. Houston resigned from the U. S. Army on his 25th birthday, and studied law for a couple of months.

This made him an attorney. He was addicted to embroidered vests, pearl gray suits, and gleaming boots. In 1823, he went to Congress and developed into a first-rate orator. Houston didn't speak much, but when he got to his feet, words of consequence tripped from his tongue. He served two terms, worked hard for the election of Andrew Jackson as President, and became governor of the state of Tennessee.

He appreciated women and once wrote: "I am making myself less frequent in the Lady World than I have been. I must keep up my dignity, or rather I must attend more to politics and less to love."

Houston ran for governor a second time. He married Eliza Allen and, almost at once, learned a bitter lesson about men. Those who make easy conquests make jealous husbands. She left him. Sam Houston resigned as governor and left for Texas and the Indian Country.

In the autumn of 1829, he was an Indian Trader and, by conciliation, prevented a war between the Pawnees and the Cherokees. His trading post was on the banks of the Verdigris near Fort Gibson and he lived with an Indian girl named Tiana Rogers. The Cherokee tribe adopted Sam Houston as their own.

From that time on, he made a pilgrimage to Washington almost every year to demand justice for the Indians. Texas belonged to Mexico, and there is nothing to suggest that Sam Houston felt any kinship for Texas. Not until 1835, when Texas selected him as commander of local forces to fight for independence, is there any indication that Sam Houston began to feel that the vast territory was beginning to engulf his heart.

As a general, he had 400 men. At Gonzales, he learned that the Alamo had fallen and that General Santa Anna had massacred the brave defenders. Sam Houston retreated before the Mexican Army and paused in the confusing terrain of the upper Brazos. There, with a handful of men and two old cannons, Houston hit Santa Anna twice—once on April 20, 1836, with cavalry, and once the next afternoon in a mad charge.

Houston lost six men and 25 wounded. The entire Mexican force, including Santa Anna, was captured or killed. When the independence of Texas had been assured, Sam Houston left the Army to go to New Orleans to have his wounds treated. Six months later, he had been elected president of the Republic of Texas.

One of his first moves was to send General Santa Anna safely back to Mexico, in spite of blistering opposition from Texans. Four years later, having been long divorced from Eliza Allen, he married Margaret Lee of Alabama. She was much younger than he, but his private letters show serenity and happiness. In time, they had eight children.

He had doubts about the wisdom of having Texas annexed by the United States. But Houston would not oppose it. Afterward, in 1846, he served, as the first U. S. Senator from Texas. Once his state became part of the Union, Sam Houston talked Union, even when he knew that Texas was tempted to secede. The Texas legislature toppled its hero by naming his successor two years before Houston's term as Senator expired.

He would not bend. On January 13, 1859, he said: "I make no distinction between southern rights and northern rights. I would not see wrong inflicted on the north or on the south, but I am for the Union, without any 'if' in the case, and my motto is, it shall be preserved."

Houston went home to Texas, and was elected governor. He was alone. Texas seceded and many called him a "hoary-haired traitor." When the Civil War started, Sam Houston sent a son to fight for the Confederacy, and went home to Huntsville. There he sat watching the setting sun paint the cotton and the corn with flecks of blood.

Then he died. And the oak was down a long time before men began to measure its length. (Copyright 1963) (King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Think Cool To Overcome Heat And Humidity

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

I am asked almost every year to suggest ways to overcome the heat and humidity during muggy summer days. Those who ask this question obviously do not work in an air conditioned office or factory, drive to work in an air conditioned car, nor live in an air conditioned home. This is the way to remain cool but this luxury is beyond the means of most people.

Start the day by putting on light, loose clothing. It is not true that a person is cooler wearing as little as possible. Going nude is warmer than wearing one layer of clothing. Dark hues absorb heat more readily than light colors. Many men also like to wear an undershirt because it collects and evaporates perspiration. In addition the shirt retains the salt from evaporated perspiration, which prevents it from irritating the skin. Every clothing or department store has a wide selection of summer garb and the lighter, the better. Loosely woven shoes also will help. A light, broadbrimmed hat shades the face from the sun and keeps the head cool.

Keep up your normal diet. In the past, a reduction in the total caloric intake was recommended and many went overboard on cold cuts, salads, and fruits. This regimen causes weakness, especially in those who work hard. A high protein diet maintains energy and nutrition.

Drink more liquids than usual. Extra salt is not necessary because most of us use more in the summer, especially on radishes, celery, and corn on the cob. Avoid salt if you have liver, kidney, or heart disease.

Alcohol and heat do not mix. These beverages ease the discomfort of feeling the heat but, beyond that, have an adverse effect upon the body's heat control mechanism. Don't do any heavy work, particularly during the hottest part of the day, unless it is your job. A shower or bath offers only temporary relief but it is cleansing and improves the feeling of well being.

Think cool. Too many children have been conditioned by their parents to hate the heat. It is tolerable and is not as bad as some things we have to contend with.

TOMORROW: Some ulcers can't be frozen.

Try And Stop Me

At a recent convention in the midwest, a very serious businessman arose to deliver a very serious speech that has been prepared for him that very morning and that he had not bothered to read over before he entered the convention hall. Included in the speech was a ream of statistics. After quoting them, he read these lines from his typescript. "These are not my own figures gentlemen. They are the figures of someone who knows what he is talking about." The resultant roar of laughter from the audience stunned the speaker so that he shut up abruptly and staggered to his seat on the dais. What happened to his ghost writer that very afternoon we leave to your imagination.

Bob Sylvester's tailor had an order for a $300 suit recently with a special small pocket on the inside of the jacket just under the outside handkerchief pocket. The customer gave the exact dimensions for the extra pocket he wanted — then disclosed the purpose thereof: that's where he proposed to carry his gold toothpick.

Military Police
Often Act Illegally

Military policemen or other military personnel have absolutely no right or authority to exercise police powers over civilians at the site of an accident involving military equipment. This is clear and Defense Department officials have admitted it.

Despite this, in a growing number of instances, the three military services are pushing newsmen around, pulling guns on them and threatening them to keep them from covering news of such events as airplane crashes. Recent incidents of this kind have occurred in North Carolina, New Mexico, Indiana and Kansas.

Rep. John Moss, chairman of the Information subcommittee of the House of Representatives, has determined that the incidents have been caused by orders issued by the Army and Air Force to "physically restrain" civilians who try to take pictures of accidents, even if the accidents are on civilian property.

These orders are patently illegal. Furthermore, as Moss points out, they strike at the heart of civilian supremacy over the military forces. "This military attempt to exercise a police power over civilians flies in the face of the basic concepts of our government," Moss says.

Newsmen will not knowingly violate the strictures of military security and will cooperate with military officials. But they expect to be treated with respect and understanding of the jobs they have to do.

When soldiers begin pushing civilians around without any authority in law—and with tacit approval of high officers in the Pentagon—then the nation is treading on dangerous ground.

These Days
By John Chamberlain
The Coming Nuclear Slavery

Not so long ago my "cousin" (actually no relative), Professor Neil W. Chamberlain, of the Yale economics faculty, sent me his paperback bearing the title of "The West in a World Without War," published by McGraw-Hill. I tossed it to one side as something that might conceivably be of interest to my grandchildren, but certainly of no particular value to the present nuclear-beset generation. But there it sat at the back of the table, and as the news from Moscow kept stressing Khrushchev's "jollity" the title kept poking itself into my consciousness.

Finally, yielding to curiosity under the prod of the nuclear test ban talk, I stuck my nose into the professor's pages. I got the shock of my life. For the world of western "peace," which Neil Chamberlain thinks is coming, is projected as the modern equivalent of what prevailed in that ancient England in which the first Germanic comers to a Celtic island paid the "Danegeld," as tribute and blackmail, to another hardy race from across the North Sea. And Kipling's words came back to me: "Once you have paid him the Danegeld, You'll never get rid of the Dane."

Professor Neil Chamberlain, to be strictly truthful, never once mentions such a thing as the Danegeld. The horrible word blackmail does not sully his pages. But give ear to his argument, you poor citizens of the West who might be under the delusion that a world without war will be a pleasant world, and figure it out for yourself.

The professor, looking at the stockpiles of nuclear bombs which are currently at the disposal of America and the Soviet Union, thinks it only a question of time before other nations will have succeeded in joining the nuclear club. With the dangerous stuff proliferating, he envisions all the atomic countries rushing to pool their weapons with the United Nations as a supreme keeper of the peace. War will be renounced.

But don't begin singing hallelujah at the prospect. For, by the sheer weight of their populations, the "proletarian" nations of the world will dominate the U.N. peace club. World policy will be an Afro-Asian affair. The western countries with the money and the industrial know-how might, like the American cotton states of the Eighteen Forties and the Eighteen Fifties, continue to be sovereign within their own borders.

But the power to "interpose," to veto any raids on their treasures, must break down. The gang in control of the monopolized nuclear weapons will inevitably have the last say. Any attempt to secede from the nuclear-dominated union would be ten times as futile as the effort of the old Confederacy of Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis, for how could conventional weapons hold out against the massing of atomic rockets in the possession of the U.N. "peace keeping" army?

Neil Chamberlain tries to perfume the prospect a bit. He envisions the rich members of the U.N. willingly subjecting themselves to a "graduated international income tax." The West, so he says, will continue to keep the same sort of advantage that a rich citizen of the United States or Britain now has over the poorer citizens. But, like rich citizens, the western countries will not have much to say about the conduct of their own lives. They will be told where to invest their funds. They will have to run their businesses with all sorts of fringe benefits and special levies going to people who don't even work for the company.

It might not be so bad if this were the limit of the price to be paid for putting one's nuclear arms under the control of a central authority dominated by the millions of Asia and Africa. (Naturally, Professor Chamberlain expects Red China to be in on the deal.) But why should the "proletarian" nations stop there? Why should the ones with the power let the ones with the wealth keep even the slightest sort of advantage? Has naked power ever been kind?

I'm asking Professor Neil Chamberlain. And I'm running like the very devil from the whole idea of a world government dominated by the likes of China's Mao Tse-tung, who would surely use his 700 million cowed and bemused constituents to vote me into permanent servitude.

Peace? With the "Danegeld" being upped year by year? I prefer the "balance of terror," with its boon of admittedly precarious freedom, any day.

'What Makes You Think I'm Over-Anxious?'

Nuclear Test Ban Treaty Termed Big Delusion

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The biggest delusion of modern times is contained in the "nuclear-test ban" treaty just "initiated" at Moscow by representatives of the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union.

Formal signing is to come later, and ratification by the U. S. Senate is necessary before the document can be regarded as in effect for this country.

The agreement, however, does not do what most people probably think it does—reduce the danger of a nuclear war. Indeed, the impression is mistakenly given that it means the abolition of nuclear war. This is due to the emphasis that has been placed on the meeting at Moscow and because of the protracted crusade for the test ban which has been carried on in recent years, largely by pacifist groups in various countries.

But the new treaty would not bar the use of any nuclear weapons in war.

It would not bring about a reduction in the existing number of nuclear weapons possessed by any government or limit in any way future production.

It would not bar nations other than the signers from carrying on whatever tests they pleased.

It would not prevent nuclear tests underground.

It would not guarantee against attempts to cheat by conducting tests above the ground. Russia cheated last time and deliberately violated her agreement.

The military advantage to the Soviet Union lies in the fact that the United States is ahead in the kind of weapons that require underground testing, and now the Soviets have gained a free hand to improve their position and catch up with the United States in this field. Also, the Soviet Union is believed to have gone ahead in certain categories, such as anti-missile-missiles and "terror" weapons, which require atmospheric testing, and the United States cannot now conduct such tests to catch up with the Soviets. It is argued here in rebuttal, however, that bombs requiring above-ground or underwater testing have been accumulated in sufficient quantity to make such testing less important.

Then why all the hullabaloo about a nuclear-test-ban treaty or "partial ban," as it is more often termed? The answer is to be found in the political domain. The same proposals were made in previous years by the United States but were rejected by the Soviets. Today, however, for undisclosed reasons, Premier Khrushchev is trying another tack. He suddenly indicated a few weeks ago he was ready for a high-level conference at Moscow on the subject of nuclear testing. Nobody knows why he shifted tactics, but it is assumed that he needed to make some showing of peaceful intent as to quiet his internal opposition and deflate Red China's war scare.

It is conceivable, too, that the military experts of the Soviet Union figured that, if the United States were to discontinue above-ground and underwater testing, this would in some manner halt the nuclear development of the United States in certain categories of weapons and prevent any real superiority from being achieved.

As for underground testing, it will continue to be carried on by both sides. Also, it is contended that if the moratorium on above-ground and underwater testing is some day broken by the Soviet Union, the United States can automatically resume testing anywhere. The experts among the scientists say, however, that it isn't as simple as it sounds and that continuous testing is important in developing many varieties of defense weapons. America, they explain, will have to be satisfied with its present strength and take a chance that the Soviets will not increase their offensive or defensive power in the nuclear field.

Inside Washington

GOOBERS—AND RELIEF — Here's the kind of difficulty the government can get into as it tries to cope with surplus agricultural products.

Peanuts are in surplus supply. One way to work off the surplus is to encourage the use of peanut butter. One way to encourage the use of peanut butter is to put it on the list of products for free distribution to persons on the relief rolls.

The Agriculture Department took this step with peanut butter and promptly ran into some vigorous protests from peanut butter manufacturers. They claimed that people on relief rolls had so much peanut butter available that they'd never eat the stuff again, once they got off relief, and that this was the long-range prospects for their commercial market.

This protest got so serious that the department made a study of the situation. It chose Baltimore, where peanut butter has been on the free distribution list. The department found the average per capita consumption of peanut butter there rose from 22 to 85 pounds per month after the spread was put on the free list.

In effect, the Agriculture Department said to the peanut butter manufacturers: "Nuts to you!"

Rocky Scores Victory At Miami
But Happy Didn't Thaw Opposition

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Aftermaths of the Governors' Conference—Gov. Nelson Rockefeller was with the new Mrs. Rockefeller everywhere in Miami—the first couple on the dance floor, the most highlighted couple at receptions. They even refused to be separated when Gov. Rosellini, D-Wash., the conference chairman, asked Rocky to go to the airport to meet Vice President Johnson. Rocky wanted to know whether wives were invited, was told "no," then declined to serve. Happy Rockefeller met all the ladies, was gracious, charming. However, it didn't thaw the opposition. Behind her back, GOP governors' wives made vicious remarks about the divorce and the children. Conclusion of the political pundits was that the remarriage is a greater stumbling block between Rocky and the White House than previously realized.

Aside from matrimony, Rockefeller scored a great victory, was easily the most outstanding figure in Miami. The TV cameras followed him everywhere—in contrast to Michigan's George Romney who was generally neglected. In backstage GOP huddles, Rocky argued that the Republicans, as the minority party, had to stick together on civil rights. He got strong support from Ray Bliss, the Ohio GOP big wheel who mobilized Dusty Rhodes, the new Governor of Ohio. Mark Hatfield, likeable Governor of Oregon, did a lot of front-running on the same unity principle. (Democrats wished he was on their side). . . . In party caucuses, Bliss argued against the Goldwater theory of Gov. Paul Fannin of Arizona and Oklahoma's Henry Bellmon that the Republicans could win if they carried all states west of the Mississippi plus the south. This, said Bliss, was the best way to commit political suicide. . . . Fannin would reluctantly come around to this, then leave the caucus and change his mind. The boys would then have to bring him back to another caucus and get him to change his mind back again.

Absent Scranton—Every governor in the USA was at Miami, including the governors of Guam and Samoa—except for the Governor of Pennsylvania, Bill Scranton was conspicuously absent and it didn't do him any good. . . . It was reported that Rockefeller had sent an emissary to see him in advance on civil rights, that Scranton got committed, then realized he might be overly committed, so took a run-out. . . . Governor who came up with the least glamor was supposedly glamorous George Romney, who showed off a trim waistline around the swimming pool, but tried to carry water on both shoulders regarding Goldwater. Romney was the only governor in the memory of newsmen who had to issue a press release to explain what he had meant in a press conference. . . . Conclusion of most observers regarding the three gubernatorial days in the Florida sun: Rocky enhanced his prestige considerably, but not enough to overcome his divorce. However, he has really dimmed the luster of Barry Goldwater.

Key Election

Most significant bi-election of the year takes place in Pennsylvania tomorrow to fill the shoes of the late chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, Francis Walter, long-time elder statesman from Pennsylvania.

It happens that Bethlehem Steel officials are putting up a terrific battle to elect one of their men, Robert Bartlett, Republican, to replace Walter in a district which hasn't elected a Republican in this century. If they win it will be a real blow to Kennedy forces.

Frostburg's Merchants, who were upset 10-4 Saturday by lowly Hyndman, avoided a totally "lost weekend" yesterday by rallying for three runs in the bottom of the ninth to edge Mt. Savage, 7-6, in a Pen-Mar Baseball League struggle at Frostburg.

Cumberland scored six times in the last two innings to down Hyndman, 10-6, on the Pennsylvanians' diamond, and Dave Jones' three-run homer sparked Barrelville to a 6-5 victory at Lonaconing.

The Merchants, who could have grabbed first place by sweeping both weekend contests, now trail Mt. Savage by a half game in the two-team race. The Old Germans are on top with a 16-7 mark, and Frostburg is 16-8. Oddly enough, Frostburg has beaten Mt. Savage four times in five meetings.

Relief pitcher Ronnie Diehl, who got the win for Frostburg, delivered a single to drive in player-manager Gary Keedy with the winning tally in the bottom of the ninth after the Merchants had already scored twice in the inning on Allan Eisels' double and Keedy's single.

George Allen opened the frame with a single and came home on Eisels' two-bagger. After Jim Willets struck out, Keedy singled to bring in Eisels and then stole second to set the stage for Diehl's game-winning blow.

A three-run homer by Steve Faulkner and "Junie" Perry's solo shot accounted for four Mt. Savage runs during a third inning uprising against starter Ralph Price.

The Old Germans loaded the bases with one out in the ninth when Dave Wilson issued three walks, Diehl, who had switched places with Wilson at first base to open the ninth, returned to the mound and proceeded to end the threat by fanning Faulkner and Kenny Johnson.

Diehl's victory was his second in three decisions. Bobby Dawson went all the way for the Old Germans and suffered his third defeat against as many wins.

Eisels and Allen each rapped a double and single, and Keedy came through with a pair of singles for the Merchants, who had a total of 11 base knocks. Perry singled twice and Faulkner hit another hit in addition to their round-trippers.

Cumberland's Hermans evened their record at 12-12 with a 14 hit attack that included a home run, double and single by Johnny Price. Alan Stockholm, Jan Withrow and winning pitcher Ronnie Evans contributed two hits apiece to the barrage.

The visiting Hermans trailed 5-4 entering the top of the eighth but came up with three runs in that frame and added three runs in the ninth. Price tallied on a passed ball for the first score in the eighth, and the other two resulted from an error.

Hyndman's big inning was the fourth when the Pennsylvanians struck for four runs on a two-run double by Cliff Clites and Eddie May's two-run single. Gene Stair also doubled for Hyndman.

Ronnie Evans, who supplanted Cumberland starter John Sloan in the second, went the rest of the distance to record his first triumph after two setbacks. Wellington Donahue (3-7) was the loser in relief.

Pinch hitter Gary Henry came through with a single to score Bob Cessna in the top of the eighth with a run that proved to be the winning marker for Barrelville. Cessna had singled and moved up on a walk and error.

Jones' three-run homer highlighted a four-run rally by the visitors in the seventh. Until then, Coney held a 3-1 lead with all the scoring occurring in the second.

Glass, Muri Triple Joe Glass, with a triple and single, was the only Barrelville player with more than one hit. Mike Muri also checked in with a three-bagger.

Ev Spiker, Cliff Fazenbaker and Cokie Robertson had two hits each for Lonaconing.

Rich Smith pitched a one-hitter and a two-hitter and slammed three home runs yesterday as town-setting Mt. Storm swept a Town & Country Softball League doubleheader from Markleysburg, 3-1 and 14-1, on the Pennsylvanians' home field.

Loch Lynn's second game off the pace by taking a pair from National Guard, 11-0 and 10-1, at Loch Lynn. In other T&C action, Petersburg bumped host Kitzmiller twice, 11-3 and 4-2; Friendsville beat Oakland, 7-4, in the nightcap after losing the opener to the home team, 3-0, and Swallow Falls trampled Accident, 22-3 and 22-1, at the latter place.

Mt. Storm's double victory ran the league leaders' winning streak to 22 games and upped their overall record to 22-2.

Loch Lynn's Frank Collins was yesterday's only doubleheader winner besides Smith, firing a three-hitter at National Guard in the opener and scattering eight safeties in the nightcap.

Francis Scott Key Post, of Frederick, knocked Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 out of the running for the Maryland American Legion Junior baseball title for the fifth time in the past six years by downing the locals in a twin bill Saturday at McCurdy Field, Frederick, by scores of 4-0 and 10-5.

Last year Fort Cumberland shook the Frederick jinx by winning two out of three games staged here and then went on to capture the state title at College Park. Prior to 1962, Frederick had eliminated Post No. 13 four years in a row and in 1957 put Midland Post out in two straight games. Over the six years Francis Scott Key Post has taken 11 out of 14 games from Cumberland and over a seven-year span has beaten Mountain District League champions in 13 out of 16 contests.

Jimmy Trout fired a three-hitter for Frederick in the opener on Saturday to decision Ralph Wilson. Francis Scott Key exploded for six runs in the 4th to beat Ronnie Manges in the nightcap affair in which Tommy Thomas was the victor.

Cumberland was 7-0 prior to Saturday's double defeat.

Chicago Cubs Get 30 Hits, Sink St. Louis, 5-1, 16-11

Double Loss Puts Cards In 2nd Place Tie With Giants

CHICAGO (AP)—Breaking out of a week-long slump, the Chicago Cubs rattled out 30 hits and sidetracked St. Louis 5-1 and 16-11 Sunday.

The Cardinals blasted five home runs in the nightcap and held leads of 8-4 and 11-6 as late as the fifth and sixth innings but the Cubs showed a little of their own muscle with four home runs.

Giants Defeat Bucs On Homer By Willie Mays

San Francisco Cops 7th Straight, 3-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays blasted a two-run homer Sunday that sparked the San Francisco Giants past Pittsburgh 3-1 for their seventh straight victory and Jack Sanford's first pitching triumph since June 18.

The Pirates led 1-0 in the last of the sixth when Don Schwall hit Willie McCovey in the side with a pitch. His next two throws brushed back Mays, but then the Giants' center fielder smashed his 23rd home run into the left field seats.

Sanford scattered eight hits as the Pirates mounted several threats. Singles by Bob Bailey and Roberto Clemente around an infield out produced the Pittsburgh run in the first.

Dick Ellsworth recorded his 15th victory against seven losses and struck out 10 in the first game.

Julian Javier, Ken Boyer and Bill White hit two-run homers for the Cardinals in the second game and George Altman and Gary Kolb added solo blasts but it wasn't enough.

The double loss was a tough blow for the Cardinals who went into the game having won nine of 11 and were closing in on the Los Angeles Dodgers, who dropped a 7-4 decision to Philadelphia.

As a result, St. Louis dropped into a second place tie with San Francisco, 4½ games behind the Dodgers.

Nicklaus And Boros Rally To Tie Palmer At 280 In Western Open

18-Hole Playoff For $11,000 Top Prize Set Today

Nicklaus Posts 66 And Boros Has 67 For Final Round

By JERRY LISKA Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — PGA champion Jack Nicklaus, rallying from seven strokes back, and U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, making up six strokes, tied with Arnold Palmer for first in Sunday's final round of the $57,200 Western Open with 72-hole totals of 4-under-par 280.

The three-man 18-hole playoff for the $11,000 top prize will be over Beverly Country Club's par 36-35-71 course at 1 p.m., EST, Monday.

Nicklaus charged through the final round in 33-33-66, the lowest round of the tourney, after a slow 69-74-71 start. Boros, who may have blown the top prize with a misjudged wedge shot on the 72nd hole, fired a closing 34-33-67, after rounds of 72-67-74.

Palmer, who had shared the 54-hole lead with Sammy Snead at 6-under-par 207, faltered with a closing 73 for his 280.

The pressure was on Palmer after Boros, playing two three-somes ahead, and Nicklaus, one three-some ahead, had posted their closing rounds.

Palmer had par beat by six strokes until he collapsed to successive bogeys on the 69th and 70th holes.

Then it was a grim battle for Palmer, who leads as money winner in the PGA tour with $85,955, to claw out pars on the final two holes and salvage hope for a tie. He had a 25-foot putt for a birdie that would have won it all on the 72nd. Arnie went after it gamely and his putt went a yard past and he had to sink the three-footer for the tie.

Snead, the 51-year-old gallery favorite who had fired rounds of 71-68-68 to enter the final round co-favored with Palmer, cooked his own goose with a double bogey on the 62nd hole.

He shot a closing 75 to share fourth place with fast-finishing Charley Sifford, whose final 69 followed rounds of 72-69-72.

Snead and Sifford each collected $2,525.

Palmer, Nicklaus and Boros, who rate in that order as the year's top money winners, will be shooting for $11,000, $5,500 or $3,400, depending on their playoff finishes Monday.

Tied for sixth place at 283, and collecting $1,900 each, were Tommy Jacobs, Harold Kneecy and ill-fated Fred Hawkins.

Hawkins, who led the first two rounds with 67-68 and slumped to 76 Saturday, posted a closing 72.

Reds And Braves Split Twin Bill

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Cincinnati right-hander Jim Maloney earned his 16th victory with relief help in a 4-3 decision over Milwaukee but the Braves bounced back for a 5-2 triumph and a split of a Sunday doubleheader.

Maloney, who has lost only three games, allowed only four hits and struck out seven before he wilted in the heat. Al Worthington worked the eighth inning and Dom Zanni the ninth.

Gene Freese, veteran third baseman recalled from the minors earlier this month, drove in three runs for the Reds.

Milwaukee southpaw Denny Lemaster outduelled Bob Purkey in winning the second game. Joe Torre drove in two runs with a pair of singles, while Menke and Lee Maye each had a pair of hits.

Tigers Take Two From Washington

DETROIT (AP) — Al Kaline cracked a game-winning homer in the opener and started the victory rally with a single in the nightcap as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Washington Senators 3-2 and 7-4 in a doubleheader Sunday.

Kaline scored the winning run in the eighth inning of the nightcap, racing in to break a 4-4 tie after Gates Brown lined to short center. Bill Freehan followed with a two-run triple.

Kaline wiped out a 2-1 Washington lead with his homer in the fifth inning of the first game as the Tigers snapped a four-game losing streak.

The Tigers took a 3-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap, with Kaline singling in the first run. But Washington tied it 4-4 in the top of the eighth on homers by Don Blasingame and Jim King.

Norm Cash homered for the Tigers in the nightcap and George Thomas slammed a homer and two singles in the opener.

Jim Bunning was the winning pitcher in the opener, recording his first victory in three weeks. Phil Regan won the second game. Fred Gladding maintained each victory with late-inning relief work.

Dodgers Drop 4th Straight

NL Leaders Lose To Phillies, 7-4

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Philadelphia, the hottest team in the National League this month, took command on Clay Dalrymple's three-run homer in the sixth inning Sunday and dealt the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers their fourth straight loss 7-4.

Don Drysdale, seeking his fourth consecutive victory, served the home run ball to Dalrymple after walking Johnny Callison and hitting Don Demeter with a pitch.

The Phils scored three more in the seventh, two on a home run by Callison off southpaw reliever Ron Perranoski. Callison became the first left-handed hitter to homer off Perranoski in his three-year major league career.

Right-hander John Bozzer pitched 5 2-3 innings in relief of Philadelphia starter Dallas Green and got the victory. Bozzer, 2-2, allowed five hits and one run. Drysdale, charged with six runs, suffered his 11th loss in 24 decisions.

Clay Or Jones Sought To Meet Ernie Terrell

"I'm offering Clay a minimum guarantee of $35,000 with the privilege of 30-per-cent of all net proceeds. And I'm offering Jones a guarantee of $10,000."

AL Game Delayed By Anti-Castro Demonstrators

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eight anti-Castro Cubans came out of the left field stands at Yankee Stadium in the second inning of Sunday's first game between the Minnesota Twins and New York Yankees and halted play for several minutes.

The group of four men and four women unfurled a Cuban freedom flag and proceeded to the mound where Camilo Pascual, a native-born Cuban now living in Miami, was pitching for the Twins.

They draped the flag around Pascual and unfurled a banner with the inscription "liberate Cuba."

Yankee Stadium park police went to the mound and quietly escorted the group off the field. There were no further incidents and the game proceeded.

Twins Snap Ford's Win Streak, 5-1

Yanks Bag Second On Lopez's Hit, 3-2

NEW YORK (UPI)—Clutch-hitting Hector Lopez earned the New York Yankees a split when he singled home two runs in the ninth inning for a 3-2 nightcap victory Sunday after the Minnesota Twins snapped Whitey Ford's 12-game winning streak with a 5-1 triumph in the opener.

Southpaw Dick Stigman, who was charged with his 10th defeat against the same number of victories, was breezing along with a five hit 2-1 lead in the nightcap until the Yankees filled the bases on a single by Tom Tresh, Elston Howard's walk and an infield hit by Harry Bright.

Bill Dailey relieved Stigman at this point and Lopez clipped his first pitch for a single to center field that scored Tresh and Howard.

Bright had produced the Yankees' first run with his sixth homer in the fifth inning. The Twins scored both their runs off Yankee starter Stan Williams, who gave way to winner Hal Reniff in the ninth. Johnny Goryl's double, an error and Jerry Zimmerman's single netted Minnesota's first run in the second inning and Vic Power hit his fifth homer with the bases empty in the third. Power collected five hits during the doubleheader.

Camilo Pascual won his 11th in the opener with a smooth six hitter.

Ford, charged with his fourth defeat against 16 victories, held a 1-0 lead over the Twins until Don Mincher tied the score with his ninth homer in the fifth inning. Pascual singled in the same frame and scored what proved to be the winning run when he moved up on a sacrifice and came home on Power's singles.

Goryl sent Ford to the showers with a three-run triple in the sixth as Pascual went on to register his third victory of the season over the league-leaders.

Mahan, Douglass, National Champs, Score In Deep Creek Yacht Races

Cop Rebel, Flying Scot Tests; Brown, Anderson Victors

By JOCK MURRIE

SWANTON, Md.—Two national sailing champions displayed their class Sunday to win Western Maryland championships in Flying Scot and Rebel classes at the annual regatta of the Deep Creek Yacht Club.

David Mahan, of Morgantown, W. Va., holder of the national Rebel crown for the past two years, sharpened his style for his third assault on the national title with a sweep of the three-race series Saturday and Sunday.

Mahan's three first places easily brushed aside the challenge of Lin Conselyea, the Ohio State champion of Medway, Ohio, and Kisi Lake Sailing Club, who had two thirds and a second to trail the West Virginia student.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I've heard it said that marrying a divorced man is like buying a secondhand car. You just buy somebody else's trouble.

Is this true or not? I've discussed this with several friends and have collected a fascinating variety of opinions. I'd like to see your answer in the column. Thank you. — IN LOVE BUT IN DOUBT

Dear Ann Landers: You seem to know a lot about psychology. Will you please explain why people who are well off financially go out of their way to give the impression that they are actually hard up?

I can understand why people who are not very well-heeled might pretend to have something, but what about these other kooks? Our friends live in a $50,000 home, drive three cars, take elegant trips and the whole family dresses beautifully. Yet they are forever crying poor mouth. They say such things as, "We can't understand why the Smiths invited us — we aren't in their league financially."

The truth is they can buy and sell the Smiths ten times over. What makes people behave like this? — CAN'T FIGURE 'EM

Dear Ann Landers: The poor-mouthers have a silly notion about how people of means are expected to behave, and they don't feel equal to it. So they try to shake the label of "well to do" to avoid living up to their manufactured image.

Bragging in reverse is phony and bootless. Perhaps they'll see this and cut it out.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to Marcella, the 14-year-old girl with the 35% hearing loss, was cold and inadequate.

No one ridicules a blind person because he can't see, or a lame person because he can't walk, but when a hard-of-hearing person says he can't hear he is often accused of not paying attention or using his handicap to goof off.

Why didn't you tell Marcella to check to learn if there is a speech and hearing clinic in her city? If a hearing aid is not prescribed she could take a lip-reading course.

You could have told her, too, to write to the Volta Bureau, 1537-33th Street, Washington 7, D. C. This is an information center which was founded by Alexander Graham Bell, whose wife Mabel was stone deaf. I do hope you will print this for the benefit of all the Marcellas who are struggling with partial deafness. You owe them more than they got from your first reply. — TAMPA TEACHER OF THE DEAF

Dear Teacher: I appreciate your hauling me up short for what you considered a "cold and inadequate" reply. Your letter is vastly better and more useful than my answer.

Confidential to Frazzled Nerves: Why don't you stop trying to please everybody and please yourself for a change? Then at least ONE person will be satisfied.

Confidential to OFFENDER or OFFENSED: Sorry, but you're mistaken at the top of your lungs. The person who does the telephoning is supposed to identify himself. The women was not rude when she asked "Who is this?" You were rude for not telling her before she asked.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before you Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Youth Leadership Training Slated

The Brotherhood Youth Institute, a leadership training program in human relations for high school and college students, will be held at Camp Mohawk, in Huntingtown, Maryland from August 26 to August 30, under the sponsorship of The National Conference of Christians and Jews, Nathan Jerald, Maryland regional director, announced.

Students may apply for participation in the workshop through their school or college or by applying directly to the Washington, Maryland, or Delaware regional offices of the N.C.C.J. A single fee will include tuition, room, board, transportation, recreational activities and insurance.

Although no satisfactory computation has been published, it is believed that the material cost of World War II far transcended that of the rest of history's wars put together.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ J ♣ K J 9 3 ♦ K J 7 6 ♣ J 9 7 6

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

1 NT 2 ♠

What action do you take?

A.—The recommended bid is three spades. You have sufficient high card strength to justify contracting for game in no trump. In other words, 10 points. But it is possible that the hand might play better at a heart contract. Your problem, therefore, is to determine whether North, your partner, has four hearts. Obviously the two club convention is no longer available to you. So, the manner of circumventing this obstacle is by making an imaginary cue bid in spades. If partner has four hearts, he should bid that suit. If not he should go on to three no trump.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ 10 2 ♣ 8 6 4 3 ♦ A 8 5 2 ♣ 9 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♣ Pass Pass 1 ♠

Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have as much as it is possible to have and still not keep a one heart bid open. When partner makes a take-out double, after you have passed him out, it is a drastic step. You should, therefore, bid one more heart than is necessary; that is, three hearts. This cannot be misinterpreted by partner, who knows that you cannot have six points.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ K Q J 9 7 5 ♦ A K 7 ♦ 9 7 5 ♠ A

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. You can rely on winning eight tricks in your own hand. Actually some unimpressive cards in diamonds and hearts might readily develop into more tricks, and we prefer to take the burden off partner in cases of this type.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ A 2 ♣ Q 5 3 ♦ K Q 10 7 6 2 ♠ K 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♣ Pass Pass 1 ♣

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. With a partner who has denied a holding of a point nothing is to be gained by competing, first because the opponents can easily outbid you, and secondly because of the danger of bidding even for eight tricks.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ K J 5 ♦ 10 6 4 3 ♦ A K 9 7 3 ♠ 6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass

2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Even the partner has shown a good hand and is urging you to proceed, you must pass. Your hand is a rock bottom minimum and, if this is all your partner needs to produce a game, he should have made a bid which was forcing, not merely one which was invitational.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ A 6 2 ♦ 9 2 ♦ A Q 8 4 ♠ K Q 8 6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♣ 1 ♠ 3 ♦ 3 ♣

What do you bid now?

A.—While the prospect for game in a minor suit is not too bright, there may be a very good chance for a no trump game if partner happens to have a heart stopper. Inasmuch as it would not be prudent for you to take a chance on his having such a stopper, the practical way to probe for this feature is by a bid of three spades, showing control of this suit. If partner tries three no trump, you may relax. If he fails to do so, you will then go on an contract for a game in diamonds.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ A J ♣ 5 ♦ A J 8 5 4 3 2 ♠ Q 9 5

The bidding has proceeded:

What do you bid?

A.—This is a difficult situation. If you try four diamonds, you may miss the opportunity to play for a nine trick game. If partner has good enough diamonds, you should be safe enough at three no trump, which bid we would risk. If it should be greeted with a resounding double, the option still remains to run to four diamonds.

What do you bid now?

A.—There is no action that you can take at this point with reasonable safety. Remember that partner's bid of two diamonds did not advertise any great amount of strength. If partner held a strong hand, he would double in preference to reopening the bidding with two diamonds. It is discreet, therefore, to pass and let nature take its course.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Smoking Can Be Fatal — To Charm

The relationship between cigarettes and cancer has not yet been completely defined. Neither — may we add — has the relationship between cigarettes and charm.

Smoking may not be fatal to femininity, but carelessness can certainly make it so. Attention to etiquette is a must, if you must smoke.

Etiquette concerns itself primarily with thoughtfulness of others. First, there's the person-to-person factor. Smoke may get in your eyes, but you should see that it doesn't get in everyone else's. Observe carefully whether smoking is permitted in any given place — and also whether it's apt to be offensive. In a small room without ventilation, others are bound to suffer. When in doubt, ask whether smoking's permitted, and if the people with you mind.

Then there are effects like property damage and littering. Smoking has messy results at best. It's simply boorish to drop ashes anywhere except in ash trays and receptacles. That goes for public as well as private places. (We'd all benefit by practicing our best private etiquette in public places, a fact Americans easily lose sight of.) Women should make it a habit to carry the little purse ash trays to take care of emergency situations.

Lastly, there are effects just on your own image. Your aim is to be feminine, well-groomed, and well-mannered in all things. And however pure your heart, you just don't look any of those things smoking on the street, talking through a dangling cigarette, smoking during a meal, and so on. Guard yourself, as well as others, from damage to clothes, fire hazard, messiness.

Group Opposes Sanitary Unit

A petition containing the names of 248 residents of the Bedford Road section in which they listed their opposition to the proposed creation of a sanitary district for the community was received Friday by the Allegany County Commissioners.

The sanitary district would run from near the city limits to a point near the Pennsylvania state

One patient was recommended for admission to the hospital, 20 were discharged and there were 45 new patients.

The next orthopedic clinic will be held September 20-21 with Dr. George O. Eaton. Dr. Weinberg will return November 15-16, according to Miss Henrietta Lipold, executive secretary.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I've heard it said that marrying a divorced man is like buying a secondhand car. You just buy somebody else's trouble.

Is this true or not? I've discussed this with several friends and have collected a fascinating variety of opinions. I'd like to see your answer in the column. Thank you. — IN LOVE BUT IN DOUBT

Dear In: Some secondhand cars are bargains and can offer many years of faithful service. Others are awful disappointments because they were misrepresented by someone who wanted to make a quick sale.

It's always wise to get a little history. Why is it on the market? Has it been in a serious wreck and patched up to look as good as new? Or did the original owner unload it merely because she wanted a new model?

Dear Ann Landers: You seem to know a lot about psychology. Will you please explain why people who are well off financially go out of their way to give the impression that they are actually hard up?

I can understand why people who are not very well-heeled might pretend to have something, but what about these other kooks?

Our friends live in a $50,000 home, drive three cars, take elegant trips and the whole family dresses beautifully. Yet they are forever crying poor mouth. They say such things as, "We can't understand why the Smiths invited us — we aren't in their league financially."

The truth is they can buy and sell the Smiths ten times over. What makes people behave like this? — CAN'T FIGURE 'EM

Dear Can't: The poor-mouthers have a silly notion about how people of means are expected to behave, and they don't feel equal to it. So they try to shake the label of "well to do" to avoid living up to their manufactured image.

Bragging in reverse is phony and bootless. Perhaps they'll see this and cut it out.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to Marcella, the 14-year-old girl with the 35% hearing loss, was cold and inadequate.

No one ridicules a blind person because he can't see, or a lame person because he can't walk, but when a hard-of-hearing person says he can't hear he is often accused of not paying attention or using his handicap to goof off.

Why didn't you tell Marcella to check to learn if there is a speech and hearing clinic in her city? If a hearing aid is not prescribed she could take a lip-reading course.

You could have told her, too, to write to the Volta Bureau, 1537-35th Street, Washington 7, D. C. This is an information center which was founded by Alexander Graham Bell, whose wife Mabel was stone deaf. I do hope you will print this for the benefit of all the Marcellas who are struggling with partial deafness. You owe them more than they got from your first reply. — TAMPA TEACHER OF THE DEAF

Dear Teacher: I appreciate your hauling me up short for what you considered a "cold and inadequate" reply. Your letter is vastly better and more useful than my answer.

Confidential to Frazzled Nerves: Why don't you stop trying to please everybody and please yourself for a change? Then at least ONE person will be satisfied.

Confidential to OFFENDER or OFFENDED: Sorry, but you're mistaken at the top of your lungs. The person who does the telephoning is supposed to identify himself. The women was not rude when she asked "Who is this?" You were rude for not telling her before she asked.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send in ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ K J 9 3 ♦ K J 7 6 ♣ J 9 7 6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 NT 2 ♣ ?
What action do you take?
A.—The recommended bid is three spades. You have sufficient high card strength to justify contracting for game in no trump. In other words, 10 points. But it is possible that the hand might play better at a heart contract. Your problem, therefore, is to determine whether North, your partner, has four hearts. Obviously the two club convention is no longer available to you. So, the manner of circumventing this obstacle is by making an imaginary cue bid in spades. If partner has four hearts, he should bid that suit. If not he should go on to three no trump.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ 10 2 ♦ 8 6 4 3 ♦ A 8 5 2 ♣ 9 4 3

Double Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You have as much as it is possible to have and still not keep a one heart bid open. When partner makes a take-out double, after you have passed him out, it is a drastic step. You should, therefore, bid one more heart than is necessary; that is, three hearts. This cannot be misinterpreted by partner, who knows that you cannot have six points.

What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. You can rely on winning eight tricks in your own hand. Actually some unimpressive cards in diamonds and hearts might readily develop two more tricks, and we prefer to take the burden off partner in cases of this type.

If partner held a strong hand, he would double in preference to reopening the bidding with two diamonds. It is discreet, therefore, to pass and let nature take its course.

Q. 9—As South you hold:
♠ K J 5 ♦ 10 6 4 3 ♦ A K 9 7 3 ♣ 4 6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—While the prospect for game in a minor suit is not too bright, there may be a very good chance for a no trump game if partner happens to have a heart stopper. Inasmuch as it would not be prudent for you to take a chance on his having such a stopper, the practical way to probe for this feature is by a bid of three spades, showing control of this suit. If partner tries this no trump, you may relax. If he fails to do so, you will then go on and contract for a game in diamonds.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our Brother and Son, John Maravia, who died July 29, 1961.

What would we give his hand to clasp,
His patient face to see,
To hear his voice, to see him smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In heaven, that happy life.
Mother, Sister and Brothers

Two Boys Drown Near Parsons

Cousins, 8 and 9, Were Wading In Cheat River

Two young boys, ages 8 and 9, drowned yesterday afternoon in the Cheat River at Blackman Flats near Parsons.

They were identified as William Robert Plum, 9, Blackman Flats, and his cousin, Jeffrey Pritt, 8, of Akron, Ohio.

Authorities said the two boys attempted to wade the stream at 4:15 p.m. near Dick Armstrong's cabin and were swept away by the current. They think the boys were pulled into a deep hole by the current.

Marsha Plum, sister of William, saw the boys go under and called Mr. Armstrong, who made an attempt to rescue them.

The Plum youth's body was recovered at 5:30 p.m. and the Pritt boy at 7 p.m. Efforts to revive the boys failed.

On the scene were Cpl. Russell Pitzer and Trooper W. D. Thompson of the State Police; Sheriff James D. Phillips and Deputy Sheriff William Judy and members of the Parsons Volunteer Fire Company.

Dr. S. M. Lillienfeld of Parsons pronounced the boys dead at the scene.

William "Tucky Bill" Plum was born in Parsons January 31, 1954, son of Robert and Betty Sue (Ball) Plum.

Besides his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Janet Sue, Marsha Lee and Robin Elaine, all at home.

Jeffrey Pritt was born in Akron August 24, 1954, the son of Wilson and Isabelle (Ball) Pritt.

Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Sandra Thompson, Akron, and Marcella Pritt, at home; four brothers, Stephen, Michael, Christopher and Gregory Pritt, all at home, and his paternal step-grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens, Parsons.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ball, Blackman Flats, are the maternal grandparents of both boys.

The bodies are at the Greenleaf Funeral Home in Parsons.

Boy Hurt In Bike Mishap

A six-year-old Corriganville boy who was hospitalized Saturday following a bicycle accident remains in "fair" condition at Memorial Hospital.

Randy W. Hosselrode, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hosselrode, Corriganville, was injured when he lost control of his bicycle and ran into the side of a car being operated by Carl W. Myers of Corriganville. Tfc. Carl Harbaugh of the State Police said the accident occurred about 3:30 p.m. on Route 36 near Corriganville.

The boy sustained a number of lacerations of the back of the skull, possible brain injury, fractured ribs, abrasions about the back and possible internal injuries.

Police said he sustained the injuries when he struck the roadway, as the Myers car was nearly stopped at the time of the accident.

Adventurous Local Men Charter Boat, Learn Navigation By Cruising Bahamas

Probably every red-blooded male at one time or another has had a yearning to be the captain of a ship and sail the high seas.

For most of us these daydreams never become a reality, but they did recently for a group of young men, several of whom are employed by local industries. Three local residents, a former local man and three others, chartered a 34-foot cabin cruiser out of Miami, Fla., and spent two weeks cruising in the Bahama Islands in the Atlantic Ocean.

Members of the crew included Mel Schwartz, an engineer at Works 7 of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company; Richard Patterson, an engineer at Allegheny Balistics Laboratory, and Marvin Rubin, also an engineer at ABL. All three men reside at 107 Lete Road.

Other crew members were Dan Ebbert, a former ABL employee who was recently transferred to Port Ewen, N.Y.; William Patterson, an employee of General Electric Corporation at Syracuse, N.Y.; Richard Green, a pharmacist from Pittsburgh, and Carl

After spending the first night in Bimini they took off the next morning for Cat Cay (pronounced key), another island in the chain about 15 miles away.

From there they cruised to Chub Cay, another island some 150 miles away and the longest run of the two-week trip. At Chub Cay the boat was refueled and they continued on to Nassau, another 35 miles away.

At Nassau they tied up at one of the port facilities or clubs and spent four days there swimming, sightseeing and buying souvenirs. The young men said the club where they tied up charged 10 cents a foot for the boat, and this entitled them to use all the facilities while they were tied up in port.

On Monday, July 8 they left for the Exuma Islands where they spent two days skin diving and fishing before returning to Nassau for two more days. The final two days of the cruise were spent retracing the first part of the trip, and on Saturday, July 13, they headed back to Miami, arriving in the afternoon.

Raced With Storm
The only bad weather the young sailors encountered was on July 12 when they raced a storm to Cat Cay from Chub Cay.

Since none of the group had any experience with navigation, the seven sailors relied on charts they obtained from the British Admiralty and a Yachtman's Guide which they purchased in Miami prior to the trip.

From the guide they said they obtained the necessary courses and added they had little difficulty following instructions which guided them from island to island.

The chartered boat they operated had two Chrysler 280-horsepower engines and cruised at 20 miles per hour. They said one of the biggest expenses of the trip was the gasoline, since the two big engines consumed fuel at a rate of about a gallon for every mile traveled.

The vessel had a 200-gallon fuel tank, sleeping accommodations for six, and a galley. This meant at least one person had to sleep on deck at night, but since the weather was mild this was no problem. However, the young men said they were bothered quite a bit by insects at night.

Took Turns In Galley
An ample amount of food was taken and each man took a turn in the galley. Not all meals were eaten aboard ship and the sailors took advantage of dining at several of the fine restaurants in Nassau.

Seventy gallons of water were taken on board before they left Miami, and this lasted most of the cruise before additional water was taken on in the islands for the final leg of the journey.

All of the young men grew beards on the cruise because they said it was easier than standing in line to shave. They also received dark tans from the many hours they spent in the sun each day.

The two-week trip climaxed three months of planning and all agreed the time and effort was well worth it.

Several members of the crew said they would now like to make the trip in a sailboat, and eventually make a trip across the Atlantic.

Youth Faces Questioning In Calif. Murder

Arrested Here In Entry Try

A 20-year-old youth, formerly of Cumberland and more recently of California, who police said attempted to enter the Memorial Hospital nurses' residence Friday morning, is a suspect in the brutal murder of a woman in California less than two weeks ago.

Marvin M. Robaire, whose father formerly managed the Queen City Hotel and Restaurant, was arrested by City Police at 4:45 a.m. Friday, and yesterday was released to California authorities.

A preliminary investigation conducted by local police on Friday indicated that Robaire was wanted by California authorities for burglary and by the FBI for unlawful flight to avoid arrest. Further communication between local detectives and California authorities revealed that he was wanted for questioning in a murder which occurred at the "it Carson Motel, Buena Park, Cal., where he worked and which is operated by his parents.

The murder and burglary both took place at the motel the night before Robaire left for Cumberland, which local police believe to have been July 17 or 18.

He arrived here July 20 and reportedly lived with a family in South Cumberland for four days. However he spent the night preceding the attempted entry at the nurses' residence in a "lean-to" in Constitution Park, which he had constructed in a wooded area near the bear's cage.

Officer Harold E. Gibson and Lt. Donald H. Smith arrested Robaire Friday morning after a report had been received from the nurses' residence that a man was trying to enter the building. He had removed a window screen in his attempt. Robaire had in his possession a small flashlight, a piece of rope, a hunting knife and a hatchet.

According to Capt. James E. Van, when Robaire was living here about five years ago he was convicted of being a delinquent minor in connection with a local larceny. He was sent to Patuxent Institute as a defective delinquent, and at the conclusion of his sentence, moved to Buena Park to join his family.

Sgt. Bradburn Is Commended

Company B, 336th Military Police Battalion, has been awarded two of the three plaques presented by the battalion during active duty training at Indian-town Gap military reservation July 6-20.

Ratings for the unit's performance at summer camp were announced yesterday at a meeting in the company armory in the VFW Home in Lonaconing.

Lt. Col. Joseph E. Stavor, commander of the battalion which has three companies in the Pittsburgh area, sent commendations and awarded it the battalion plaque for a 96.3 score in training and a plaque for a 96.56 score in mess.

Lt. Raymond Chaney, Company B commander, congratulated non-commissioned officers and men for achieving superior ratings in food service and training for the first time in its history.

A letter of commendation from Col. Stavor to Sgt. John E. Bradburn, operations non commissioned officer, was read. It recognized his persistent efforts in working with U.S. Senator J. Glenn Beall and Rep. Carlton R. Sickles to defeat a plan for transferring the unit from Lonaconing to Lewes, Del., earlier this year.

Former Area Woman Is Strangled

Ohio authorities are investigating the circumstances surrounding the death by strangling of a former Garrett County woman.

The body of Mrs. Norma J. Burns, 20, was found Friday in a grassy field in a remote part of Newbury Township, near Chardon, Ohio.

Authorities there said Mrs. Burns came there from Baltimore and had been employed since February as a babysitter by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Clarke.

She was a daughter of Mrs. Helen Dumire, Oakland, and was born in Cretlin and was reared in Oakland.

A coroner's report indicated Mrs. Burns was slain last Monday night. She was not reported missing until Friday night, after authorities found the body.

Authorities said the Clarks said Mrs. Burns had three days off and assumed she was staying with friends.

The victim's purse was missing when the body was found.

Girl Killed By Lightning At Shawnee

Attempts Fail To Revive 15-Year-Old Pennsylvania Girl

A 15-year-old Jeanette, Pa., girl was killed by lightning yesterday at Shawnee State Park.

Rita Wiers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wiers, was dead on arrival at Bedford Memorial Hospital after being struck by a bolt of lightning at 4:45 p.m.

Attempts to revive the girl began almost immediately and were continued while she was taken to the hospital. Three tanks of oxygen were used in the unsuccessful attempt to start the girl breathing again.

Rita was reportedly in the camping area when the storm began. Ironically, she had started toward the shore to warn her brother who was boating to come in, when lightning felled her.

Ralph Nicol, Bedford County coroner, investigated the fatal incident.

The body was taken to the Mason Funeral Home late last night.

FSC May Offer New Degrees For Masters

Frostburg State College is planning to introduce into the curriculum a master of arts degree program.

Work for the new degrees would be related to English, history, science, mathematics and modern and foreign languages, according to R. Bowen Hardesty, college president.

Mr. Hardesty said yesterday that Ivan C. Diehl, dean of academic affairs, is accumulating all necessary information relative to establishing the full program.

Also in the planning stages, Mr. Hardesty said, are complete courses in business administration. These would not earn a degree at present, but are planned for introduction to determine the extent of interest and to find out how many would desire a degree in this field.

Mr. Hardesty also noted that extension courses in Frostburg and the area and in summer school are to be offered under the direction of Dr. Raymond McCullough, director of extension and summer school.

Educational courses will be expanded to include two courses in administration and supervision in public schools and another course for guidance counselors.

President Hardesty further observed that a number of local and area physicians and dentists have asked the college to investigate the possibilities of offering courses in dental hygiene and for medical technicians. The college is also considering the offering of a degree in nursing soon, he said.

The college head suggested that individuals interested in any of the proposed courses, or any who desire information about extension or summer school, should contact Dr. Raymond McCullough at the college.

The seven young men, who are in their 20s, took command of the 34-foot Hatteras boat July 1 in Miami and set course for the island of Bimini, a distance of approximately 50 miles southeast of Florida.

None of the young men had any appreciable previous boating experience although Katz had made the trip before on another boat.

A 20-year-old youth, formerly of Cumberland and more recently of California, who police said attempted to enter the Memorial Hospital nurses' residence Friday morning, is a suspect in the brutal murder of a woman in California less than two weeks ago.

Marvin M. Robaire, whose father formerly managed the Queen City Hotel and Restaurant, was arrested by City Police at 4:45 a. m. Friday, and yesterday was released to California authorities.

A preliminary investigation conducted by local police on Friday indicated that Robaire was wanted by California authorities for burglary and by the FBI for unlawful flight to avoid arrest. Further communication between local detectives and California authorities revealed that he was wanted for questioning in a murder which occurred at the "if Carson Motel, Buena Park, Cal., where he worked and which is operated by his parents.

The murder and burglary both took place at the motel the night before Robaire left for Cumberland, which local police believe to have been July 17 or 18.

He arrived here July 20 and reportedly lived with a family in South Cumberland for four days. However he spent the night preceding the attempted entry at the nurses' residence in a "lean-to" in Constitution Park, which he had constructed in a wooded area near the bear's cage.

Officer Harold E. Gibson and Lt. Donald H. Smith arrested Robaire Friday morning after a report had been received from the nurses' residence that a man was trying to enter the building. He had removed a window screen in his attempt. Robaire had in his possession a small flashlight, a piece of rope, a hunting knife and a hatchet.

According to Capt. James E. Van, when Robaire was living here about five years ago he was convicted of being a delinquent minor in connection with a local larceny. He was sent to Patuxent Institute as a defective delinquent, and at the conclusion of his sentence, moved to Buena Park to join his family.

Girl Killed By Lightning At Shawnee

Attempts Fail To Revive 15-Year-Old Pennsylvania Girl

A 15-year-old Jeanette, Pa., girl was killed by lightning yesterday at Shawnee State Park.

Rita Wiers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wiers, was dead on arrival at Bedford Memorial Hospital after being struck by a bolt of lightning at 4:45 p. m.

Attempts to revive the girl began almost immediately and were continued while she was taken to the hospital. Three tanks of oxygen were used in the unsuccessful attempt to start the girl breathing again.

Rita was reportedly in the camping area when the storm began. Ironically, she had started toward the shore to warn her brother who was boating to come in, when lightning felled her.

Ralph Nicol, Bedford County coroner, investigated the fatal incident.

The body was taken to the Mason Funeral Home late last night.

FSC May Offer New Degrees For Masters

Frostburg State College is planning to introduce into the curriculum a master of arts degree program.

Work for the new degrees would be related to English, history, science, mathematics and modern and foreign languages, according to R. Bowen Hardesty, college president.

Mr. Hardesty said yesterday that Ivan C. Diehl, dean of academic affairs, is accumulating all necessary information relative to establishing the full program.

Also in the planning stages, Mr. Hardesty said, are complete courses in business administration. These would not earn a degree at present, but are planned for introduction to determine the extent of interest and to find out how many would desire a degree in this field.

Mr. Hardesty also noted that extension courses in Frostburg and the area and in summer school are to be offered under the direction of Dr. Raymond McCullough, director of extension and summer school.

Educational courses will be expanded to include two courses in administration and supervision in public schools and another course for guidance counselors.

President Hardesty further observed that a number of local and area physicians and dentists have asked the college to investigate the possibilities of offering courses in dental hygiene and for medical technicians. The college is also considering the offering of a degree in nursing soon, he said.

The college head suggested that individuals interested in any of the proposed courses, or any who desire information about extension or summer school, should contact Dr. Raymond McCullough at the college.
